HOME RULE IN CITY, STATE, U.S., CROWE PLEDGE

Free Sanitary Board and Parks, Demand.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

Home rule as a platform and the Home Rule ticket as a campaign slogan were formally adopted yesterday afternoon in a conference of the leaders of what has been known as the Crowe-Barrett-Brundage organization.

This opposition to outside interference in local affairs, which, according to some political philosophers, has become more important than parties and factions, received new and definite support.

The high points in the platform outlined by the now-to-be-called Home Rule ticket, are:

Home rule for the United States in a determination to defeat the world court and to maintain freedom of thought and action in America.

Home rule in Illinois wherever the divine rights of the state come into conflict with the desire of national, centralized domination.

Home rule in Cook county and in the city of Chicago.

Home rule in the Sanitary district.

Home rule in matters of taxation.

Home rule to the extent that criminals must be punished and not saved from penalty through the operation of semi-foreign interference.

It was the declaration of the supporters of the newly created home rule ticket that Chicago and Cook county should hereafter control all such affairs as city parks, the sanitary district, taxation, and internal utilities.

Automatic Rule Resented.

Resentment was expressed against such legislation as placed in the hands of Leslie Small, son of Gov. Small, the automatic control of real estate belonging to the Chicago sanitary district. It was recalled that the sanitary board bill of last year was only permitted to pass with the inclusion of a clause by which a state appointee, in this instance Leslie Small, is the court of last resort in this phase of Chicago affairs.

Continued control of Chicago park affairs by the state was declared to have reached a point of public indignation. This control has grown out of arbitrariness and should be abolished, it is to be declared in the home rule platform. The west park and the Lincoln park system, both having grown to vast proportions, place in the hands of domineering politicians a dangerous political patronage, it was declared.

Small Regime Eyes Taxes.

Taxation as affecting Cook county has long been particularly irksome to the Les Small regime, supporters of the home rule ticket say. Several legislatures have endeavored to take the powers of the board of review from Chicago hands and place them in control of the state tax commission. The forthcoming declaration of the home rule ticket will declare that a review of Chicago property taxes in the hands of a Les Small tax board is unthinkable. A Chicago citizen desiring a review of his taxes would in the last analysis of the subject be compelled to travel to Springfield. And this would be a trivial inconvenience in consideration of the authority a state tax board would wield over property.

Pardons and paroles also come in for an attack by the home rulers. The pardoning of hundreds of vicious Chicago criminals by the Les Small parole board, conducted by Will Colvin and Charles H. Jenkins, was declared in the conference to be one of the most devastating factors of downstate domination and deserving of swift correction.

Prompt Turnover of Funds.

The home rulers also prepared a plank for their platform assuring the voters that their candidate for county treasurer will turn over all public money as soon as collected and that public work by giving the taxing bodies their shares as they require them.

That celebrated patriotic phrase, no taxation without representation, was taken up as the slogan of the home rulers. It was declared that Chicago and Cook county are taxed disproportionately to the state, in spite of which the state runs Chicago's parks, is meddling with its sanitary district, meddling up its utilities, and paroling its criminals.

Desires leaders will begin mapping out a new program today for the Republican county primary campaign as a result of the sudden termination of negotiations with former Attorney General Brundage, who renewed his old alliance with the Crowe-Barrett camp last Friday.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Michigan U. Parley Hunts Campus Mop

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Scoring fraternity alumni who bring liquor to fraternities, met with Dr. Clarence Cook Little, president of the university, last night and discussed various housing problems among the organized groups.

The main topic of the discussion was the liquor problem, which Dr. Little attacked in a month ago in a meeting of students and presidents of the various fraternities.

Although the only action taken was the decision to appoint committees to investigate the various campus problems, the discussion of the drinking situation was heated.

How to Control Alumni.

The crux of the matter was reached when the problem of how the undergraduates can regulate the activities of their alumni who insist upon drinking was brought to the attention of the assembly. Mason P. Rumney, president of the university alumni association, suggested that in each fraternity a room be set aside as a "restricted district," in which alumni could conduct themselves according to their own wishes and from which room the undergraduates members would be excluded.

His plan was opposed by Dr. Little, who drew an analogy between the university and the government. He stated that it would hardly seem right, as long as there is a national law against liquor, to provide rooms either in the state house at Lansing or the capitol at Washington for drinking purposes.

"In the same way," Dr. Little stated, "it would hardly be advisable for the university to authorize drinking by the alumni, even if the undergraduates were not allowed to participate."

Plan Followed in Washington.

In answer to the president's objection, Mr. Rumney said that such was the case in Lansing and Washington. "I know that in our statehouse and in the national capitol there are private offices in which liquor is consumed, for I have been there and have seen it," he said.

A plan was proposed to stop, to some degree, the influx of beer into Ann Arbor by running down the bootleggers, but no decision was reached.

Dr. Little suggested that any alumni who brought liquor into a fraternity house be treated as a bootlegger and be punished accordingly.

Berlin Sings 'Remember' at London Club

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Irving Berlin and his heiress bride spent a quiet Sunday together with friends today. The much hounded honeymooners took a long automobile ride and visited the historic sights of London and the adjoining countryside, returning to their hotel in the early evening for dinner.

But they had a merry time in the wee hours of Sunday morning when they made an unexpected appearance among the encircled subjects at the famous "Kitkat club," one of London's swankiest dancing establishments.

Their appearance was at the call of Sophie Tucker, whose farewell appearance was being celebrated before she sails to America after having taken London by storm. When the shy bridegroom let down the bars and with his wife appeared at the crowded dance hall, half of London's theatrical stars were in attendance.

Miss Tucker Springs Surprise.

Miss Tucker staged a taking surprise when she asked her guests for silence and announced, "Mr. Irving Berlin, who made my success possible."

The millionaire composer then stood near a piano and sang in a shaky voice "Remember," while tears glistened in Sophie's eyes and his wife looked on from a table.

Afterwards as he slipped to the table he told reporters it was Sophie who made him and not he Sophie. "I used to sit up all night on a new song and hurry to her flat in the early morning to have her try it. Then if she liked it she'd sing it the same day. I'd not have come out tonight but for her engagement to sail home to her sick mother."

They Started Together.

Miss Tucker told reporters of the days when she and Irving started together at the tiny restaurant in Chatham square, New York, when he was at the piano and she did the singing.

It was nearly dawn when the honeymooners were allowed to return and again barbed themselves in their hotel suite, but before leaving Mr. Berlin told the eager crowd, "We'll sail in London some time if we can get around and not be looked at."

Motorcycle Policeman John H. McDonald was taking a bath yesterday in his home, 6558 South Ashland avenue, when he was interrupted by a burglar. The policeman seized his pistol, rushed to the rear porch and fired twice at a retreating form. He thinks he missed.

BRITISH GROOM GREECE TO FIGHT TURKS IN SPRING

Perils Italy's New Empire.

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Jan. 16.—The threat of a Turkish war in the spring is realigning friendship in the Balkans.

Although it is officially alleged no written agreement yet exists, Athens believes arrangements are being made by Dictator Pangalos with British diplomats for joint Greco-British action in case Turkey marches across the mountain passes into Mosul when the snows and rains have passed and military operations appear favorable.

Former U. S. Warships Replanned.

Coming into Piræus harbor, tourists see the former American battleships Idaho and Mississippi repainted red, preparatory, it is said, to a war coating of gray. In Athens it is learned that a British naval mission of twenty officers has completely reorganized the Greek fleet, while the purchase of French submarines, as well as the construction of additional vessels, starts it on the way to becoming the biggest Mediterranean force. The former Idaho and former Mississippi are being completely reconditioned, regunned, and prepared for action, while under British guidance, both the port of Epirus and the port of Saloniki are being turned into first class naval bases.

While Britain still dominates whenever it chooses to send in ships, Greece hopes to overcome Italy's lead. For a coalition with Britain, Greece is willing to offer its regenerated navy as well as its regenerated army. The army is Gen. Pangalos' ambition, and for this he is employing a commission of French military instructors.

Recent Italy's Activity.

One of his aims is the reverse of the last defeat from the Turks, while another is to clear Italy out of numerous islands, especially the island of Rhodes, where the population is entirely Greek. The Greek patriots see mutual gains for the British in this cooperative move, because, since Mussolini's regime, all the maneuvers in the Mediterranean are directed against British possession of Malta and Cyprus. Premier Mussolini in public speeches also is declaring that Italy's future lies in the sea and in favoring a navy able to conquer the Mediterranean, which is called "a British lake."

Presently there will be tension between Greece and Yugoslavia, and the question of a Serbian outlet on the Mediterranean remains unsolved. The other Balkan states are growing restless after seven years without a solution. War talk is cropping out everywhere.

TERRY AND FRANK RETURN TO FACE JAIL SCANDAL

Two well tanned, well groomed, and debonair young men stepped off the Twentieth Century in the La Salle street station yesterday with a homecoming air.

"Hello, Terry!" "How's Frankie?" were the greetings that met them; for it was none other than Chicago's own beer barons, Druggan and Lake.

And, strange as it may seem, in view of past history, it was the newspaper men who greeted them thus amicably.

And, strange as it may seem, both young men extended a welcome hand to the surly, even the "Terrible Terry," who recently had a knock all his own smashing the noses of such.

"Fine," said Terry, with a hearty grip. And "Good to see you all again," said Frankie, with the engaging smile that brought him several thousand mad dash notes during his recent trial.

They came expecting to be arraigned for alleged conspiracy in the jail scandal before Judge "Willie" this morning, but found the case postponed until Feb. 1.

RST LADY ILL; COOLIDGES MISS CHURCH SERVICES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—(AP)—More than 800 Boy Scouts of New York, who came to Washington today to see President Coolidge at the White House, were disappointed. They gathered around the executive mansion expecting to salute the President and Mrs. Coolidge as they departed to church, but the Coolidges did not attend services.

Mrs. Coolidge was reported as slightly indisposed and it was thought the President remained away from church in order to be with her.

Guests, Clerk Are Held Up; $2,500 Taken

Five well dressed men, each wearing smoked glasses and each bearing a revolver, early this morning walked quietly into the Hayes hotel, 64th street and University avenue, held up the clerk, two guests, the telephone girl and three bell boys, looted the safe of $2,500 and, after herding the victims in an elevator cage, walked out as quietly and sped away in two automobiles.

Henry Welch, clerk, was behind the desk, conversing with Eugene Beccas and Robert Duffy, guests. Mrs. Mamie Kargus, telephone operator, residing at 11 East 65th street, was at the switchboard; the three bell boys lounged at one side of the office. Suddenly the five bandits appeared.

"Hands up! Don't move. Don't turn," one commanded.

Ordered to Lie on Floor.

Mrs. Kargus, Beccas, and Duffy, and the bell boys were ordered to lie down on the floor of the office. As one stood guard over them the others compelled Welch to open the safe. From this they scooped the money into a sack.

The guard over the victims on the floor noticed a diamond ring on a finger of Mrs. Kargus.

"Give me that," he ordered. She took it off. He looked at it a minute, then tossed it back.

No Trace of the Robbers.

With the money in their possession, the robbers ordered the victims on the floor to their feet, marched them to an elevator and forced them inside. With a warning not to emerge for ten minutes they departed.

As soon as the bandits were out of the door, Welch rushed to the telephone and called the Woodlawn police station. Immediately police silver squads started a search of the neighborhood, but at an early hour this morning no trace of them had been obtained.

STUDENTS TURN BANDITS

Two high school seniors, sons of wealthy men, having dissipated on double strawberry nut sundaes and chocolate creams the money they had collected for tickets to the Tilden high school senior prom, went out with a rusty revolver yesterday to recoup.

They pulled off their "job" in regular Chicago bandit style, getting $5 more than the $7 they were short, but because of their distinctive oxford bags and their general attire of flaming youth, they were easily identified and captured by a detective bureau squad.

Break News to Father.

And last night the two boys, James Wray and Herbert Ellison, both 17 years old, tearfully broke the news, over the telephone from the detective bureau, to their fathers, Robert P. Wray, 5404 Princeton avenue, superintendent of sales for Armour & Co., and Spolinsky 120, 7129 Vernon avenue, part owner of the Cloverleaf Milk company.

Rose Malatesta, owner of a delicatessen store at 7401 St. Lawrence avenue, was the victim. She told the police fearfully how two repentant young men, one bearing a revolver, gave up the money in her till. So she gave it—$12.

The police relayed the boys' descriptions to all squads touring the district, and soon Serg. Thomas O'Rourke and his comrades sighted Wray and Ellison.

Found Pistol in Ash Can.

When the boys were evasive about themselves, a search disclosed the weapon. It was rusted beyond possible use, and Ellison said he had found it in an ash can.

Taken to the bureau, the youths confessed to Capt. John Stegman, commander of detective squads, who likened their venture to the first missteps of Leopold and Loeb. The boys shivered and disclaimed the similarity.

Beverly Hills, Cal., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Princess Bibesco, wife of the Roumanian ambassador to the United States, suffered bruises and a slight concussion of the brain when thrown from a horse while riding over the Douglas Fairbanks estate here today. Her mount ran away while the princess was riding with her younger brother, Anthony Asquith.

PLAN GAG RULE TO JAM COURT VOTE THROUGH

Growing Opposition Alarms Lenroot.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—With Great Britain's seven votes to America's one arising to plague the world court senators, as it vexed and helped to defeat the league of nations senators in 1920, official Washington is excited tonight over plans to jam the world court resolution through the senate under the cloture rule.

Although Senator Lenroot (Rep., Wis.) said tonight that no move had been made to invoke cloture, it is known that the world court proponents are seriously considering the advisability of attempting to force the resolution through in the next two or three days before the tax bill is reported to the senate.

Claim White House Sanction.

Sanction of this plan by President Coolidge is claimed on the strength of a White House statement last week that the President believes the world court measure should be disposed of before the tax bill is considered.

Getting wind of what is afoot, Senator Borah (Rep., Ida.) and other opponents of the resolution to put the nation into the world court held a council of war. They mapped out their program of speeches against the court for the coming week and emerged from the conference asserting that they are ready to fight to the last ditch and challenging their foes "to resort to gag rule" if they dare.

To invoke cloture it is necessary to obtain 16 signatures to a petition to close debate after which the adoption of the cloture resolution requires a two-thirds vote.

Hemlock Over Moya.

The 16 petition signatures can be procured easily, but the proposition of getting two-thirds of the senators voting to support an order to close debate has given the world court forces pause. There is little doubt that if the world court resolution were to be voted on now it would be adopted by the required two-thirds, although it is estimated that fewer than half the senators are convinced that it is a wise move for the nation to enter the court.

There are, however, certain Republican senators who would vote for the court against their convictions because the proposed step is desired by the President and is endorsed by the Republican platform.

So, with two-thirds ready to vote for the court, for one reason or another, Senator Lenroot and his associates are prodded the proposition of cloture with the assumption that a two-thirds vote to shut off debate would be easily procurable. It soon transpired, however, that this does not follow. There are, it appears, a number of senators who, though they would vote for the court, if a vote were had, do not want to vote at all.

See Embarrassment at Polls.

Most of these are candidates for reelection and they have discovered that it is going to be exceedingly embarrassing to them if they are compelled to vote on the court before the primaries and elections this year. It seems that the tide of opposition to the court is beginning to rise back home and their political future is far from serene. They would much rather pigeonhole the court resolution, for the time being at least.

These senators do not look with favor on the cloture proposal with the immediate vote that a successful move to close debate would entail. There are certain Democratic supporters of the world court who shrink from invoking cloture, lest cloture become the fashion and legislation distasteful to the south be passed under the microscope to Count Noses.

On account of these considerations, Senator Lenroot is compelled to count noses carefully before invoking cloture, for a failure to muster two-thirds on the cloture vote would be a severe reverse for the world court cause.

One of the causes of the growing opposition is said to be the broadcasting of the argument by Senator Borah and his associates that Great Britain would have seven votes to America's one in the election of judges and that at 47 times Great Britain and France would dominate the court through the council of the league. Senator Borah was asked tonight to outline his position on this matter.

"If this tribunal," he said, "were confined in its jurisdiction purely to arbitral questions, I would not regard the question of equality of votes as so important. But when I realize that it has its advisory powers and that European governments are greatly concerned with reference to that jurisdiction, I am unwilling that the United States should adhere to the court until the power of the United States is equal to that of any other nation."

"We saw in the Mosul case how important it was to Great Britain and we shall see in the future how deeply interested they will be in selecting judges not only from their own country, of course, as would be their right if they could secure his nomination, but in the panel as a whole."

Power of 'Big Four.'
"Do not forget that upon the council, as permanent members, sit Great Britain and France and Italy and Japan, and they also have their membership in the assembly. They practically control the question of advisory opinions, not after the opinion is asked for but in the sense of what shall be submitted to the court."

"Will any one deny that Great Britain could block the asking of any advisory opinion which has objectionable to her? Will any one contend that the four great powers, sitting permanently upon the council, can not block the asking of an advisory opinion unsatisfactory to them?"

"Yet, notwithstanding we are not upon that council and would have no voice in submitting such questions and no voice in framing them, the proposition is that we shall enter the court with Great Britain having seven votes to our one in the selection of the judges. How much advantage, in the name of heaven, are we willing to give other nations?"

Mr. Borah explained how the judges are elected by the league, in which Great Britain and each of the British dominions has one vote, making seven in all.

"We have had, in the last few weeks," he went on, "considerable discussion about how Great Britain as it is claimed, is gouging the American people with reference to rubber."

No Grounds for Complaint.
"But we cannot successfully complain. There is no ground upon which we can complain with hope of effecting a change of policy. Great Britain is simply taking advantage of the situation to protect herself economically."

"She is doing what any nation would do and, as the world goes, as she has a right to do. I do not believe that it will be within our power to change her policy in the slightest but we can, in dealing with these great powers, to use an ordinary phrase, keep in our hands the cards which belong to us."

"We can keep the advantages which are ours. In my opinion, instead of contributing $2,500,000,000 to Great Britain in the debt settlement, it would have been wiser, in view of the great competition in economic affairs in the coming years, to have kept that within our control. We had better hold what is rightly ours than hope to protect ourselves through the gracious benevolence of a competing nation."

"And so it is here. We are going

I have here a statement made by Lord Balfour a few days ago in a speech in the house of lords. He said in substance that so long as the British empire exists no one can doubt but that it will act as a unit."

"Does any one believe for a moment that if British interest were aroused that her seven votes would not be cast as a unit? We are indifferent to the most elementary rules of human conduct if we consent to trust our interests to a controlled electoral body, and seven votes, as a bloc, means control."

Of the young woman with colored hair and sea green eyes, Mrs. H. G. Of course, the police have a right to know that she is from Peoria and that she is from Peoria through her friendship with noted artists. And that's what the Peoria said last night that she had a trace of her in Peoria, she had ordered a stateroom cabin."

Registered "Margery Maxwell." The young woman with green eyes appeared in Peoria a few days ago. She went to the Jefferson hotel and wrote "Margery Maxwell" on the register in a nice, innocent way. She went at once to her room. "O, Mrs. Atwood," she said, "I'm Margery Maxwell. The sign says so."

"Yes," said Mrs. Atwood, "I've heard Cyrena Van Gordon of you."

Goes to Atwood Home. "O, yes," continued the pea Maxwell. "I have a lovely view for you from Cyrena. She sent with me."

So Mrs. Atwood invited the woman to her home; and no ever seen Miss Maxwell, she coaxed. Which she would certainly have been if she had known well—that being one of the girls with the sea green eyes. Miss Maxwell had neither the nor green eyes.

Next day Mrs. Atwood requested to the country club with in the evening gave a party. On the way back from the club they stopped to buy some and at the party the young man for the company—and we know she got away with her role.

And next day Mrs. Atwood young singer shopping with Block's department store, charges everything and nothing. Certainly, certainly, Mrs. anything else?"

Something Goes Wrong. And about noon the next day Mrs. Atwood got a telephone call from Block's department store. "Mrs. Atwood," said the manager, "there is a young woman with green eyes and henna hair shopping for you. She says she's Margery Maxwell and is charged with everything. It was a shock to Mrs.

LIB VOICE, RED HAIR, PUT OVER FAKE OPERA STAR

Poses as Margery Maxwell to Defraud Hostess.

Of the young woman with the henna-colored hair and sea green eyes who posed as Margery Maxwell, the well known opera singer, the police have suspicions that she is from Peoria and that she knew of Mrs. Atwood through the latter's friendship with noted singers and actresses. And that's what the police said last night that the police had a trace of her in Peoria, although she had ordered a stateroom to Chicago.

Registered "Margery Maxwell," the young woman with the sea green eyes appeared in Peoria one evening a few days ago. She went directly to the Jefferson hotel there and wrote "Margery Maxwell, Chicago," on the right in a nice, innocent hand. She went at once to her room and called Mrs. Atwood on the telephone.

"O, Mrs. Atwood," she gushed, "This is Margery Maxwell. The singer, you know."

"Yes," said Mrs. Atwood graciously, "I've heard Cyrena Van Gordon speak of you."

Goes to Atwood Home.
"O, yes," continued the pseudo Miss Maxwell, "I have a lovely vanity case for you from Cyrena. She sent it down with me."

So Mrs. Atwood invited the young woman to her home, and not having a vanity case with her, she was deceived. Which she would certainly not have been if she had known Miss Maxwell—that being one of the chances the girl with the sea green eyes took.

Miss Maxwell had neither titian hair nor green eyes.

Becomes a House Guest.
Well, the green eyed girl went to the home of Mrs. Atwood. She took the lovely gold vanity case with the close set top with her and it pleased Mrs. Atwood so much that she is mortified now—Miss Maxwell "became at once a house guest."

Next day Mrs. Atwood took her guest to the country club with her and in the evening gave a party for her. In the way back from the country club they stopped to buy some music, and at the party the young woman sang and played the piano and would you know she got away with her operatic skills.

And next day Mrs. Atwood took the young singer shopping with her at Black's department store, where she bought everything and nothing but, "Certainly, certainly," Mrs. Atwood, "anything else?"

Something Goes Wrong.
And about noon the next day Mrs. Atwood got a telephone call from Black's department store.

"Mrs. Atwood," said the black manager, "there is a young woman with green eyes and hennaed hair here shopping for you. She says she is Miss Margery Maxwell and is charging it all. Is that all right?"

It was a shock to Mrs. Atwood.

RITCHIE AND DONAHAY DEMOCRATIC TICKET IN 1928, IS PROPOSED

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Definite movements to boom Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland and Gov. A. Victor Donahay of Ohio for the Democratic nomination for President in 1928 have gained headway during the last few weeks.

ALBERT C. RITCHIE, (International Photo) the last few weeks, it was learned here today, following a visit of Clem L. Shaver, Democratic national chairman, to this city.

Friends of Gov. Ritchie have been active and a man familiar with the situation predicts that his candidacy may become a serious menace to the aspirations of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, although the two governors are friendly. Bernard M. Baruch, formerly a supporter of William G. McAdoo, is now reported backing Gov. Ritchie.

The movement for Gov. Donahay of Ohio was said to have made little progress outside his own state. Many of the Ohio Democratic leaders are really opposed to him, but would be expected to fall in line. To continue, however, as a presidential possibility, Gov. Donahay would have to run for reelection to a third term this fall.

"Why—why no," she said. "There—there must be some mistake. Miss Maxwell is here now in my house. Up stairs in bed!"

But the store manager insisted. And a vague thought formed in Mrs. Atwood's mind.

"Wait!" she said. "I'll go to her room and look."

Which she did, and "Miss Maxwell" was gone.

Gone from Hotel, Too.
"Hold her," said Mrs. Atwood. "There is something wrong. I believe she's an impostor."

"She has just gone," said the store manager.

"Hold her," said Mrs. Atwood to the Jefferson hotel.

"She's just gone," said the hotel manager. "She charged her bill to you. And a drawing room to Chicago."

Chicago? Well, the store is checking to see just what trinkets and finery and perfumes the girl with the green eyes bought.

And how that gal could sing!

CARDINALS VIE FOR JOB AS PAPAL AID TO CHICAGO

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

(Copyright, 1926, By The Chicago Tribune.)

ROME, Jan. 17.—The Vatican is confident of the success of the Eucharistic congress in Chicago in June. Some few problems in connection with it not difficult but of a curious nature remain to be solved. The principal question is the election of a papal delegate.

Two factions have appeared in the college of cardinals. One favors Cardinal Merry del Val who speaks English and is friendly toward England, for the honor. The other faction which is Democratic in its leanings and is led by Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago, proposes the Vatican secretary of state, Cardinal Gasparri. Cardinal Gasparri in turn has suggested Cardinal Sincero, who is less occupied and would have time to learn to speak English.

Cardinal Bonzano who is well acquainted with America and its customs, having been at one time the papal delegate at Washington, is also a candidate. It is claimed there is some opposition to him among American churchmen.

The Vatican attaches great importance to the Chicago congress. With this view in mind and a desire to have American Catholics meet a great number of cardinals present at the congress, the holy father invited all the cardinals living in Rome to a special reunion last Sunday, in order to discuss the selection of a papal delegate.

Corriere della Sera says the moment has arrived for Italy to begin negotiations with the Vatican on the Roman church situation. The holy see wants to see the main question, which involves the papacy's demand for a restoration of its temporal power, solved at an early date.

KOW $299 BECAUSE $1,400.
A settlement was recently made on a savings and life insurance account in the Harris Trust and Savings Bank whereby a depositor's family received $1,428.78 on an account which had been carried for twenty-nine months with deposits of $5.00 per month, making a total deposit for that period of $245.50.

The account was originally opened with the intention of saving $1,000 by making small deposits in the bank each month, but before the objective was reached the depositor died. Because of the insurance feature of this plan the $1,000 that was to be saved by the depositor was paid to the depositor's family in addition to $128.78, representing the bank balance and disability benefits received through this plan.

Any one between the ages of 10 and 70 is eligible for this plan, and any amount between $1,000 and $25,000 may be accumulated by making the required monthly deposits. A postcard addressed to the Harris Trust and Savings Bank, 115 West Monroe Street, requesting additional information, will be given prompt attention.—Adv.

WIDOW OF BANDIT LAYS HIS SLAYING TO ONE MISSTEP

Joseph Sheridan, stickup man who was shot and killed in pistol battle with Policeman Edward Garrity of the North Robey street station on Saturday, was sentenced to Pontiac reformatory when he was 19 years old and served three years.

His widow, Mrs. Caroline Sheridan, told Capt. Daniel Murphy of the Chicago avenue station yesterday that she knew of this blot on his record when she married him. But, she added, he had lived straight until an hour before he was shot. Then, with his pistol, he stepped out to augment his wages as a laborer by a bit of banditry.

"If he hadn't been drinking he'd never have done it," she declared. "His friends caused it. They gave him liquor."

The Sheridans had two children, Beverly, 4 years old, and Joseph, 18 months old. The widow, who is penniless, lives at 837 Cambridge avenue.

CAROL'S LOSS OF THRONE STIRS UP WAR ON CENSOR

Roumanian Papers May Quit Publication.

BY LORIMER HAMMOND.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
BUCHAREST, Roumania, Jan. 17.—Directors of ten leading Roumanian newspapers, who met yesterday to protest against the government's censorship, decided to draw up an ultimatum, declaring they will cease publication unless the authorities lift the censorship.

The action is the result of the strict ban on the revelation of any of the details in connection with former Crown Prince Carol's renunciation of the rights to the throne.

The papers have been ordered not to mention the quarrel between Prince Carol and King Ferdinand, nor refer to Carol's fight with the Bratianu brothers, nor discuss the possibility of the abdication of the king. Neither are they permitted to connect the name of Prince Barbu Stirbey, whose influence as Queen Marie's subject of international gossip, with Carol's renunciation. The foreign office issued this ultimatum, stating that the censorship does not extend to foreign correspondents.

Claims Carol Asked King to Quit.
This TRIBUNE correspondent today learned the meaning of the cryptic ultimatum made yesterday by Zisi Lambino, former morganatic wife of Prince Carol, in an exclusive interview with this correspondent. She said: "You might ask the king why Carol quit, but I don't think he'll tell you." The explanation lies in a report which has been circulated under cover here that Carol, two months ago, backed by a group of generals, went to his father and demanded that he give up the throne. A stormy family row followed, becoming so turbulent that Carol himself was forced to renounce his rights.

It is said the red haired Magda Lupescu, the former wife of an army officer, who is now with Carol in Milan, joined the prince when his train stopped at the small town of Chitila, Roumania.

Kepi Magda from London Trip.
Carol's military friends tried to persuade him to give her up, and his personal secretary, Col. Condresco, managed to sidetrack the woman in Switzerland while Carol proceeded to London to attend the funeral of the dowager queen of England, Alexandra. Afterward, however, the red haired Magda traveled to Italy and rejoined the prince.

Since Carol has been in Milan, a steady stream of emissaries from Bucharest has dogged him to persuade him to leave Magda and avoid a scandal. The information here is that Carol's friends are now planning to send Zisi Lambino to him in the hope that she will be able to distract him and bring him back, or at least free him from the clutches of a woman who is called "nobody" by Bucharest society.

The assertion of Prof. Torga, Prince Carol's former teacher, that Carol's renunciation does not exist legally, is causing a great stir in all circles here. Prince Scorus Ex-Wife.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
ROME, Jan. 17.—Zisi Lambino, former morganatic wife of Prince Carol of Roumania, is doomed to bitter disappointment if she still holds out the hope that their life together will be taken up again. From persons closest to the prince, this TRIBUNE learns that Carol considers his youthful episode with Zisi definitely finished.

Prince Carol still maintains contact with his wife, the Princess Helene, by letters and telegrams. He sent her a long telegram on the evening of Jan. 11.

Prince Carol remains in seclusion in Milan. He has not yet accepted an invitation to visit Turin. Heavy snow still covers northern Italy, and no date has been set for his proposed departure for the Lake Garda resort.

Carol is much disturbed by the stories concerning Magda Lupescu. He has asked that the world press be informed that Mme. Lupescu is an honorable, charming woman, for whom he holds the deepest respect.

SALM WRITES VIENNA HE WILL GET ROGERS GOLD

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
VIENNA, Jan. 17.—Letters from Count Ludwig Salm von Hoogstraeten, according to his friends, indicate financial arrangements will be reached whereby the adventuring Austro-Hungarian will become richer than ever.

"Ludi's" friends have heard he is confident of winning all suits and holds as his trump card the Austrian law whereby he is entitled to bring his son to Austria and to raise him as an Austrian citizen, whereas the mother has no such rights.

Friends say Count Ludwig writes he will win the suit for the restoration of the child as well as the suit against Col. and Mrs. Henry H. Rogers, his wife's parents. They say that "Ludi" is not anxious to bring the child to Vienna or to superintend his education. They consider the suit as merely a clever move to raise the quit claim price, and they hope to see the count back in Vienna and Berlin haunts, his pockets bulging with greenbacks.

New York, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Total cost of government try, covering the expenditure, state and local government, and including capital expenditures, amounted to $10,252,000, as against $2,919,000, according to a report by the industrial conference board. Expenditures in 1924 were 100,000,000, and a half times as high last year before the war, account the decreased power of the dollar, the total governmental expenditure, expressed in terms of 1913 purchasing power, was one-fifth times in the from 1913 to 1924.

Decrease in Federal Expenditures.
While there was a decrease of 100,000,000, or 10.8 per cent, of the expenditures of the federal government in 1924, state and local expenditures increased their outlay 600,000,000, or 7.6 per cent, to $1,070,000,000, an increase of $107,000,000 in governmental expenditures.

The significance of these figures in relation to the previous amounts of total taxes received by the federal government, various points out, lies in the mere taxation figures do a complete account of the tax burdens assumed through public expenditure year to year.

$10,252,000,000 COST OF RUNNING NATION IN 1924

Increase of More than 7
Billions Since 1913.

New York, Jan. 17.—(Special.)—The total cost of government in this country, covering the expenditures of federal, state and local governmental authorities and including capital outlays, amounted to $10,252,000,000 in 1924, as against $2,319,000,000 in 1913, according to a report by the national industrial conference board.

Expenditures in 1924 show a 1.1 per cent increase over those of 1923, which totaled $10,145,000,000, and were three and a half times as high as in the last year before the war. Taking into account the decreased purchasing power of the dollar, the increase in total governmental expenditures since 1913, expressed in terms of dollars in 1913 purchasing power, was about two and one-fifth times in the eleven years from 1913 to 1924.

Increase in Federal Expenses.
While there was a decrease of $355,000,000, or of 10.6 per cent, in the expenditures of the federal government in 1924, state and local governments increased their outlay by $482,000,000, or 7.6 per cent, leaving a net increase of $127,000,000 in total governmental expenditures.

The significance of these figures in relation to the previously published amounts of total taxes raised by the various governmental agencies, the board points out, lies in the fact that more taxation figures do not present a complete account of the real financial burdens assumed by citizens through public expenditures from year to year.

Nearly Eight Billions in Taxes.
This becomes apparent in comparing the total taxes raised in 1924, amounting to $7,907,000,000, with the total of expenditures amounting to $10,252,000,000. While true that in the long run expenditures and taxes go hand in hand, the proceeds of loans, made use of by municipalities and states to an increasing degree during the last few years, may create a great disparity between taxes and expenditures.

It isn't the price—it isn't the quality—it isn't the tremendous saving you can make now during the I. Miller sale. Greater than these, it is the OPPORTUNITY to the thousands of women who have hoped to wear I. Miller shoes that is the outstanding feature.

These sales would not be held were it not for our implicit confidence in the critical judgment of the feminine public of Chicago. We know that a woman who has once worn I. Miller slippers, who has noted their ease and comfort, who has admired their beautiful contours, will continue to wear these beautiful creations.

So it is that semi-annually these great sales are held—the most successful sales the world has ever known—the largest sales in volume of pairs and dollars of high quality shoes in the country.

Thus it is that periodically we see new faces in the shops, new faces that become familiar as the months go by and as the months continue to tell the story of I. Miller quality, lasting shapeliness and longer wear.

You are welcome to the sale, very welcome, and we promise not only astonishing values and considerate service, but the opportunity to TEST, to COMPARE, to DETERMINE the superiority of I. Miller beautiful shoes.

GIBBONS FORCES WAY TO HEART OF FAMISHED RUSSIA

Sends World First Eye-witness Story of Plague.

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

On that ride from Riga to Moscow through the northwestern provinces of starving Russia I became better acquainted with Max Litvinoff, and found a new basis for his bolshevistic beliefs. In a knowledge of his sufferings under the old czarist government of Russia. In Moscow I occupied a room in the old sugar king's palace across from the Kremlin. Ambassador Litvinoff had a room across the hall whose floors were heavily carpeted and whose walls hung with many paintings, including one original Rosa Bonheur.

Although I sent dispatches from Moscow on the day of my arrival, the object of my trip was not the political capital of the country. The starving heart of the country. The silence from that region remained unbroken, so that circumstances gave me an even chance on being able to send back the first dispatch and achieve the " scoop " which is the strongest stimulation to American newspaper enterprise.

Reaches Center of Famine.

Forty hours on slow trains in a car with some unskilled doctors brought me to the city of Samara on the Volga river—Samara the heart of the famine and the center of the cholera and typhus epidemic. With my mouth and nose covered with a Turkish towel soaked in strong mint alcohol, I left the train in the railroad yards where work, sickness, hunger, misery, and death were rampant.

The station rooms, the platforms, the ground between the tracks, the streets leading to the depot, and the waste lands and dumps reaching a half mile down to the sloping mud banks of the river—all of it was one uneven expanse composed of mounds of rags, of which were lying more bundles of rags, from which peered gaunt, dirty faces with sunken, hungry eyes and unkempt hair.

The air was almost black with flies and swarms of hungry crows hovered above, croaking dismally. Starving dogs dragged themselves wearily, almost staggering, between the living, like infested rag piles. The stench of it all was sickening.

Wind swirls filth of contagion. The weather was hot and dry and a stiff wind whirled the dust and filth of contagion, filling the air with the plague. By boat, train, and caravan the starving hordes had reached this river and rail point from all points of the compass. The starving came from Kazan and from Barats, from Tairt-sin and Astrakhan.

They represented all breeds of the human animal from light haired Finns of the Siberian steppes to swarthy Turks and slant eyed Mongolians. They spoke a myriad tongues and wore all manner of rags, patches, robes, hats, turbans, and boots. They were Bashkirs, Kurds, Tartars, Tcherkeses, Kalmucks, Poles, Germans, Ukrainians, Austrians, Roumanians, and plain Russians.

This was the starving cholera stricken backwash of the war—old and young, lame and halt, the remnants of humanity at its lowest.

Rows of New Graves.

Opposite the railway station was a cemetery with several rows of freshly dug graves. I saw three groups carrying in dead within a space of thirty minutes. One man preceded each group carrying a coffin cover on his head while the rest follow with the open box in which reposed a horrible, shrunken figure—either pale green or blackened—stark features with a gaunt mouth, yellow fangs protruding from a nest of long matted hair and beard.

I saw two weeping women carrying a pole on their shoulders and suspended from the pole was a Russian peasant cradle on which was a baby's body lying on top of rags with its knees contracted and its small bare feet sticking up in the air.

A boy of twelve with a face of sixty was carrying a six months old infant wrapped in a filthy bundle of sheepskins. I saw him deposit the baby under a freight car under which he also crawled. He drew from some recess of his ragged body covering sev-

INVERTED

Bananas do not grow on the plant as they hang in the store.

On the contrary, they grow with the small end of the fruit pointing upward.

They are to dwellers in the tropics what bread is to us—the staff of life.

One good-sized banana equals two average slices of bread in energy value.

And what a delicious dessert it makes when sliced and served with cream.

Childs

eral dried fish heads, which he crammed into his mouth and chewed ravenously. Then he drew the baby's lips to his own and transferred a paste of half masticated fish scales and bones to the baby's mouth as a mother bird would feed her young.

Another Sufferer Arrives.

A group of women young and old were hovering in a circle around a bundle of rags on the ground in front of the platform. An old woman struck an ineffectual old man on the shoulder with a kettle driving him away from the secret female rites attendant upon the arrival of one more little sufferer into the midst of misery.

This was my first experience with famine and cholera and I wrote the dispatch that day practically as you have read it above. I tried to condense it all in seven hundred words. I made use of thousands of soviet paper roubles to get it telegraphed to the outer world to some point where it could be relayed to you reader of THE TRIBUNE.

Russian officials finally promised me that it would be sent but just to make sure that all my work would not be for nothing, I managed to get inside of the operating room of the telegraph station where I received one of the shocks of my life.

Transmitted in Greek Letters.

The telegrams were transmitted to Moscow over a sending instrument that had a lettered keyboard like a piano. BUT THE LETTERS ON THE KEYS WERE GREEK AND MY DISPATCH WAS WRITTEN IN GREEK. THERE WAS NOTHING TO DO BUT TO GO THROUGH THE DISPATCH AGAIN AND MARK THE CLOSEST GREEK LETTER EQUIVALENT TO THE LATIN LETTERS AND IN THIS CURIOUS FORM THE DISPATCH WAS SENT TO MOSCOW.

It was relayed from there to Riga, where George Seldes relayed it again to London, from which place John Steele shot it on to Chicago where it arrived almost word for word as I had written it. It was published in THE TRIBUNE, in the eighth column on page one, Aug. 30, 1921. The good luck which had followed my efforts from the minute I left Paris resulted in this story being the first exclusive eyewitness account of the Russian famine to reach the world.

Real Work by Larry Rue.

The real work on the Russian assignment was done by Larry Rue, who, unprovided with visas as I was, entered Russia at Astrakhan and crossed it from south to north at the risk of arrest, imprisonment and execution. He came out at Petrograd and wrote his wonderful Russian series at Raval for which he was rewarded with a $1,000 bonus. His was the crowning journalistic achievement in connection with the Russian famine.

Now to the readers and listeners of W-G-N. Does the above recollection give you the thrill, from its reading, that you would have received, had you heard it over the radio? This is the question at the bottom of this experiment. What is your opinion? Can you suggest how THE TRIBUNE can combine the radio with the columns of THE TRIBUNE to be of greater service to readers and listeners of W-G-N? Address your opinion to the editor of THE TRIBUNE.

Cargoes of Mahogany and Rare Woods!

IN 1783 Elijah Cobb, at the age of fourteen, packed his "whole wardrobe in a gin case for a trunk" and went to Boston to look for a voyage. Then followed forty years of adventure—cargoes of mahogany and rare woods from Honduras and the East Indies!

When he settled down, his love of the sea was reflected in pieces of furniture like the Danersk Plymouth Cupboard—built like the cupboards on his fleet vessels. Many pieces of choice mahogany were ordered by this man of the world who knew the finest each land could offer.

Danersk Furniture is built in our New England factories for homes of today in the same spirit of appropriateness that distinguishes the traditional furniture of those early days.

A remarkable display of fine Chinese Rugs

may now be seen at Pushman's

This latest importation of ours is remarkable not only because of the large number of rugs it contains but equally so because of the fine quality of the pieces and the low prices at which we have marked them.

It consists in all of 52 bales of rugs—one of the biggest importations we have ever had. The sizes range from the small mats up to carpets for large rooms. The colors include all those lustrous Chinese tones of blue, red, mulberry, gold and taupe—and also many unusual effects obtained with shades of lavender, plum, magenta, green and orange.

In quality they are far superior to the ordinary commercial Chinese rugs so often imported to this country. All are thick, heavy pieces woven of the finest grade of Mongolian wool in a manner that insures great dependability.

Chinese rug prices have advanced materially the past few months and indications are they will continue to do so. These, however, were purchased by us before the advance, so we have been able to price them on the old low scale. We feel sure they are marked at the lowest prices at which one can now buy Chinese rugs of dependable quality.

WHY WE WANT THE CADETS.

They seem to think in Washington that there is more than a fair chance that Chicago will get the next Army and Navy football game for the dedication of Soldiers' field in the fall, but the opposition outside the army and navy has just begun to realize that this unprecedented thing might come to pass and consequently is just getting its stride. The claims of Baltimore and Philadelphia are being pressed. Before this editorial is printed there may have been a decision.

Some of the misunderstanding of the purpose in asking for this game for this region must be intentional. It cannot all be merely stupid. Chicago is not so interested in the game as a game. If the Army and Navy wanted to play the annual game here without bringing on the cadet bodies the city probably would try to be an agreeable host, but it would not buck all this opposition, hostile precedent, and prejudice to get it. It would allow the eastern cities to have the game in rotation without any opposing bid.

The people who are asking for the game here want the cadets. Chicago is becoming a center of organized pacifism and we have recently seen the effects of its promotion in the schools. The young Americans being trained in West Point and Annapolis are being devoted to a life of sacrifice for their country. It is not only war which requires it. Peace asks self-sacrifice of the young men who go from the two academies into the two services.

They are highly selected and highly trained, physically and mentally, but they have surrendered, when they choose the American army and navy, all the emoluments for which active American youth strives in civil life. They have limited their earning power to the small pay which the United States pays its highest officers. They have almost taken a vow of poverty. Unless they have money from other sources they will not be able when they marry and have families to give these families the comforts which every ambitious young man associates with his hoped for success. Even in peace these young men trained by the government and serving the country will make sacrifices which an ambitious man would regard as hardships.

They never will have anything to say of the policies which the country adopts in its statecraft or diplomacy. They do not make wars, but they are the first dead in them. Even if they see the country neglecting its defenses they must be very careful what they say or they will be in Billy Mitchell's place before a court martial. As in the case of the firing on Sumter, in the case of the Maine, and in the destruction of the Lusitania, the American officers find large elements of civilian population which had been quite indifferent to national defense demanding war with no army to fight it, but with some unarmamented force to die in it.

Every army and navy officer whose duties have brought him in contact with civilian sentiment has encountered this general indifference or opposition to his cause. There are groups of intelligent citizens who support the army and navy, but they also work against the general apathy, and frequently the pacifists are more than a match for them. We have a well organized protest against the American soldier. It undermines military training in the schools and colleges. We do not regard it as the promotion of peace at all. It has a sentimental disregard for the real causes of war, but it is effective.

It is not entirely plain to us why the army and navy men who encounter this baring in and sometimes despair of the consequences should prove to be so stubborn and obtuse when they are offered a counter attack. What can be more narrow-minded than the attitude of the east with regard to this game? The Jews are cheap and the opposition unintelligent.

Chicago will pay the expenses of the entire cadet body of both schools. It will see that there is no loss to the athletic funds of either school. There is not a penny to lose and no expense to the government, and the two services will have the opportunity to challenge destructive pacifism in this section.

The display of the cadets will ask a question: Are you ashamed of these young men, and do you regard the life of self-sacrifice to which they are about to devote themselves, in peace or war, unworthy of American youth? Pacifism in these regions is asserting that the army and navy train men for war and that these men seek war and get it. The absurdity is criminal, but it is being accepted as truth that this country, which has gone into all its wars without an army, would not have any more wars if it destroyed all its military forces. We want the Army and Navy game because it will be the best promotion of the policy of prudence and common sense in national life which the mid-west could have. If the army and navy authorities cannot see that, they are on almost the same ground as the pacifists.

KIDDED BY EXPERTS.

In the Voice of the People today is a letter from Arthur T. Aldis. The Iraq mandate contains Mosul oil. Before the league of nations and the world court were organized Great Britain, having marched a successful army into the region, would have got the oil. It now gets the oil with the support of the court and league.

It may be that Great Britain will divide up the oil concessions. There always have been divisions of territories and resources among powerful nations when it was expedient or essential that they should be divided.

The only way in which a unanimous decision could be made by the council, which is to split up the resources, was to keep one of the claimants, Turkey, from voting. The world court advised that the just method was to deprive both Turkey and Great Britain of a vote. Then it could be and was a unanimous decision, other nations represented on the council unanimously voting that the territory in which they were to get a share was mandated to Great Britain and should be so retained.

We have no objection to the result, but we do not regard the process as holy. It may be better that a British administrator should give British administration to that territory than that a Turkish administrator should give bad administration. It is probably better for the world that the oil pumping nations have the oil than that the Turks should be chasing the Kurds or the Kurds the Turks over it.

The present condition would have been established without the league of nations or the world court. It has been established with them. It would be better if Haiti were orderly and productive under an American mandate than that it should have a thin fringe of French-speaking black literacy and a solid content of murderous voodooism, but the same Americans who find that this new and altruistic has put the British in Turkish Iraq, where they would have been anyway, think and say that the American mandate in Haiti is the instrument of a despotic power. If the council of the league gave France a mandate in Haiti it would be a work of brotherly love. We have no objection to the dominant powers of Europe getting what they can outside of this part of the world. They have done it before and they are doing it now. We object to a perverted idea of how they are getting it. We object to having this idea recommended to the American people as representative of a new and better impulse in men when it is the same old impulse getting expression, just as it always has, except that now a chorus in Geneva sings a hymn. We do not think the world is better off for that hypocrisy.

We do not believe that the humanity of Europe minus oil will go so far as the humanity of Europe plus oil. Neither, we imagine, do our friends the Armenians. There has just come into this office a well edited 200 page volume of the sorrows and sufferings of these people who furnished soldiers against Turkey but cannot offer an attractive proposition to a mandating country of Europe. Hence they are out of luck.

The idea of a new feeling of responsibility for weaker people will not hold its colors in the wash. There is no such new idea. The British in Iraq are neither worse nor better than they have been in India and Egypt. The French in mandated Syria have been blowing up ancient cities and destroying mixed populations with as much thoroughness as ever was used in putting down a people who stood against their rule.

The world court and the league apply the word "mandate" and the word "sanction" to these proceedings. Otherwise it is business as usual. The court is not unreliable and we do not think it is. We think it is wholly reliable for its purpose, but see no reason why the United States should join in a system which has decorated itself with some altruistic names when it would not have joined that system without the decorations.

THE ROYAL NONE SUCH.

There is a new drive for funds in this state, and even if you know what is meant by drive you will have half of it to learn. The Supreme court having decided that Gov. Small is liable for the money he withheld as state treasurer, he and his associates figure that about $1,000,000 will be required to make the restitution. The governor, the "man of iron," as his friends describe him, is out of the state.

All the pay roll citizens are expected to kick in and pay back to the state the money the Supreme court says the governor as treasurer took away from the state.

Len Small is in class all by himself. He is beyond the possibility of competition.

DRY PILGRIMS AT ALBANY.

[New York Times.]

Albany is to be blessed again by the visitation of the prohibition guilds: a terror to the wicked and a bore to all. Carrying water on one shoulder and rum on the other, Republican statesmen will revive the prohibition enforcement act sure to die in the senate. Republican state platform of 1924 was enriched with a declaration of "law and order" which was a masterpiece of ambiguity and commits the Grand Old Party to nothing. Any Republican can interpret it as he likes. With noble impartiality the assembly Republicans took it one way, the senate Republicans the other; that is, enough of them to beat the enforcement bill.

These studies in bamboozlement will not be repeated. The Republicans have heard from New Jersey. Their desolation in Greater New York has sunk into their hearts. This year the ax will be sharper and the blow swifter. What can the professional dry do for prohibition? Nothing. The utmost stretch of their malice can but substitute a Democratic wet for a Republican wet senator. So the Republicans will make the venture of trying to conciliate the cities, depending upon old habit and many past favors to keep the rural Republicans in line. Moreover, the sense of a privileged position under Volsteadism, as compared with the comparative subordination of the city folk, ought to make the bureau soul satisfied and forgiving.

Articles can make his own with none to fear or make him afraid. For him fermentation can jump untrammelled over the one-half of one percent from his household treasures—if any well trained authority dares to question them must be proved to be intoxicating in fact. He is near his raw materials. In environment, in house, barn, and outhouse space, he has enormous advantage over his cabined, cribbed, cowed brother in the man made town. It is too much to expect him to be magnanimous. Anyway, Republican politicians must be getting sick, not only in New York but in a number of other states, of a "great moral issue" which has formed the unfortunate habit of getting itself kicked into smithereens.

The display of the cadets will ask a question: Are you ashamed of these young men, and do you regard the life of self-sacrifice to which they are about to devote themselves, in peace or war, unworthy of American youth? Pacifism in these regions is asserting that the army and navy train men for war and that these men seek war and get it. PREGNANT WOMAN'S DIET.
It is important that the pregnant woman eat properly in order that she may supply her baby needs, and at the same time, keep herself in proper chemical and nutritional balance. This does not mean that she needs to eat more than she has been eating. She needs to eat enough for two, but what difference does that make since she has always eaten enough for two and just now the second of the two weights is the seven pounds. The fatty that the pregnant woman should be a heavy eater has caused plenty of trouble. She needs more lean meat than the average woman can eat, and in cocoa, eggs, broths, but that must be eaten in moderation for an increase in the quantity of food.

The Massachusetts department of health has a pamphlet on diets for pregnant mothers from which the following is taken:

DIET FOR 8 MONTHS OLD BABY.
A. M. C. writes:
1. What must my baby eat? She is 8 months old and I give her nothing but bottles milk.

2. Is cod liver oil good for her?
3. Is cod liver oil good?
4. Applesauce, at that age?
5. When must I begin to give her whole milk? She weighs 15 pounds.

REPLY.
1. A baby 8 months old should be eating milk, fruit juice, soups, cereals, and bread. 2. Cod liver oil is good, but with a little water. 3. Part 3 of 3 of milk.

2. Yes.
3. Yes.
4. A little white, but not too.

5. By the time she is 1 year old or almost that.

BLOW YOUR NOSE.
C. K. writes: Lots of people do not know what it means to put one's nose to the window.

I find that if I blow my nose before getting on the car I never have to sneeze. There certainly was a lot of sneezing on that car morning.

SHE CAN EAT BACON.
Mrs. C. S. writes: Can I feed a baby with the bank's master of securities?

A baby 1 year old can eat bacon, either boiled or fried. Give it in moderation.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE
Letters to this department must be signed with names and addresses of writers.

ADVERSE POSSESSION.
Chicago, Jan. 12.—(The Chicago Tribune.)—Has the owner of a small building, which has stood for about thirty-five years, any rights in the following:

"A question has been raised by the adjoining property owner, who claims that this building occupies six inches of his ground. In other words, his claim is that he is entitled to the six inches of his ground. Is there no law by which in the time the owner of the small building in question has a right to let it stand undisturbed?"

W. S. writes: Adverse possession for the time stated would cut off the neighbor's right to object.

JOINT BANK ACCOUNT.
Saginaw, Mich., Jan. 12.—(The Legal Tribune.)—A mother dies leaving a joint deposit with her son. Her will she leaves her estate entirely divided equally between her two boys, as they are the only living members of her family. Does not half of the joint deposit belong to the son? Fisher's rule of the mother? Should not this half be equally divided between the two sons?

J. A. L. writes: If the bank account was so arranged as to give to the survivor by virtue of joint tenancy or an analogous arrangement, it would not become a part of the estate of the joint tenant who dies first. "Take up with the bank the matter of severing the exact nature of the bank account."

TEMPORARY VISITORS.
Chicago, Jan. 10.—(Friend of the People.)—Two young Canadians came to Chicago early in the year 1923 to visit and to see the sights. They were not working and attending night school, and since they have come to Chicago, have taken out their first papers, with the intention of remaining in the United States and becoming American citizens.

What steps would they have to take in order to visit their parents in Canada and return to the U. S. T. writes: I am a Canadian to whom none were legally admitted to the United States in 1923 they may visit Canada for a period of time, but they cannot return without paying back tax or presenting an immigration form. If they did not pay head tax on their first trip, they would be required to secure an immigration visa from the nearest American consul and to pay head tax before they can be readmitted after a temporary visit to Canada.

HOWARD D. EREY, District Director of Immigration.

SPRINGFIELD.—The Democratic state convention adopted this plank in its platform: "That in the opinion of this convention the employment of military force by the federal government to coerce submission of the seceding states will inevitably plunge the country into civil war, and that the federal government should not attempt to do so."

NEW YORK.—When Murray H. died at 145 Sixth Avenue it was discovered that for thirty years a woman had passed herself off as a man with such success that her sex was not suspected until the body was laid out. She was a married woman, having had two wives, surviving both. All those years she had consorted with men as one of them and for thirty years she voted the Democratic ticket. She was a member of the Iroquois club, the leading Tammany organization in the Fifth Assembly district.

She went about the saloons, treating when it was her turn, and none ever suspected she was not a man.

The Salonika correspondent of the Daily Mail says that the allies are continuing to land troops at Orfano, fifty miles to the northeast of Salonika. Another report from German sources, but credited in official circles here, is that Montenegro has given up its fight against the central powers and has joined the allies.

WASHINGTON.—Senator Keayton will introduce a bill placing an annual tax of practically 30 per cent on incomes of wealthy expatriates derived from the American properties. Among those who would be affected are William Waldorf Astor, Mrs. William B. Leach, the Ladies Curzon and Countess of Suffolk, daughters of the late Lord E. ## $2,500,000 FOR AVIATION GIVEN BY GUGGENHEIM

Endowment Will Promote Aeronautics in U. S.

New York, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Donation of $2,500,000 to aid in the advancement of aeronautics and aviation in this country was announced today by Daniel Guggenheim, banker and mining man. He gave $500,000 last year for the establishment of a school of aeronautics at New York university.

Mr. Guggenheim, in making this announcement, said the fund would be used in cooperation with Secretary Hoover and all agencies of the government and the public generally, in promoting aeronautics.

Plans Full Cooperation.

The secretary was assured that his department would be cooperated with in every possible manner. Mr. Guggenheim explained that his action was taken particularly in view of President Coolidge's endorsement of the recommendations by the national advisory committee for aeronautics that a bureau of air navigation be established in the department of commerce.

The money will be administered by the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aviation, the trustees of which will be "men of eminence and competence." Mr. Guggenheim announced. He said he immediately would place $500,000 at the disposal of the trustees and would supply further funds up to an additional total of $2,000,000, as needed.

Have Unrestricted Power.

The trustees, the letter said, would have unrestricted power to do anything which, in their judgment, may develop aeronautics. It was stipulated that the fund should not be a profit making enterprise and any earnings that may be realized were to be added to the fund. The general purposes of the fund, as outlined by Mr. Guggenheim, are to be as follows:

To promote aeronautical education in both institutions of learning and among the general public.

To assist in the extension of fundamental aeronautical science.

To assist in the development of commercial aircraft and aircraft equipment.

To further the application of aircraft in business, industry, and other economic and social activities of the nation.

The charming costumes revealed by the opened fan are described fully in the paragraphs below.

"Lud, Sir Peter, Would You Have Me Out of the Fashion?"

—as Lady Teazle said to Sir Peter, so every woman says in her heart of hearts, for to be "in the fashion" means many delightful things. Nowadays, of course, it does not insist, as in the 18th century, so much upon following extravagant but elegant fopperies, as upon being keenly alive to whatever befits "a woman of taste and charm."

"Simple from Taste" Aptly Describes These Newer Gowns

The quaint phrase above, from "The School for Scandal," is peculiarly apt in describing the three afternoon Gowns pictured in the left of the fan—in a season when the smartest is almost sure to be the simplest.

Most Attractively Priced at $67.50

Forward flare of skirt and flaring jabot are cleverly contrived on the first Frock of crepe de jour in reseda, blue, gray, navy, Miami rose, bisque, black with a blending tone.

The second may affect a neckline high or low—its skirt has an ingenious pointed, circular overdrop. The third, has great charm with its piped scalloped draperies, its long puffed sleeves, its embroidery and long streamers.

A far cry, of course, from the bouffant days of the gallant author and the lovely lady of whom he used the phrase. But just as expressive of our time as a courtly compliment was of his. And surely no less desirable! Shown fourth in the fan, a Topcoat, for the South, an imported white tweed, has ermine collar and embroidered pockets, $110.

The crepe de chine Frock, next, with turtle neck has futuristic printed design on the blouse in white, pink, $87.50.

Ensembles Gain in Charm Through the Two-piece Frock

A trim coat plus a smart two-piece dress equals one charming adaptation of the new Spring Ensemble. How smart the effect, is shown by the one pictured sixth. Under a slim coat of kasha, brown or green, is a silk two-piece frock patterned all over with fresh spring daisies, $150.

Other spring adaptations of the Ensemble are kashas and silks in pastel shades and white, some with the new cape sleeve effect, two-piece tailleurs, dark and light.

Many Smart Models Are Still to Be Chosen In the Clearance of Women's Winter Coats

And you will do well to take the time to look at them, if the cold spell of the past week is any test of continuing cold weather. Tweeds with fox or wolf, fox, and softer fabrics with other furs, such as squirrel, are as low as $35, and there are many models at various reduced prices, in sizes for large, medium as well as the smaller women. Evening Coats, too, are reduced.

SMALL'S RELIEF FUND TO GO INTO CAMPAIGN, CLAIM

Seeks Assembly Grip to Block Impeachment.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

More than one motive is behind the collection of a special $1,000,000 fund for Gov. Len Small from state payers, contractors and miscellaneous sources, it was declared by high political authorities.

The governor, it was asserted, is deeply convinced now that he will be compelled to pay approximately $1,000,000 into the state treasury as a result of the Illinois Supreme court decision holding him accountable for his earnings on public funds in his custody while he was state treasurer [1917-18].

With this conviction came the launching of the drive for $1,000,000 to be raised by subscriptions.

Claim Money Is for Campaign.

But it was declared yesterday that the greater part of the $1,000,000 sought, supposedly to pay the judgment against the governor, was underwritten long ago and that the real purpose of the present drive is to accumulate funds to throw into the legislative campaign.

These statements by political leaders supported earlier ones to the effect that a big slice of money raised for Gov. Small's 1924 campaign was set aside at that time for contingencies that might arise in the treasury interest case. Likewise the news came as support for a rumor that has been going the rounds for weeks that a certain wealthy politician has underwritten a sizable portion of the $1,000,000.

It is known that Gov. Small and his ally, Fred Lundin, are out to capture control of the next legislature at all costs in order to forestall impeachment. The governor fears that impeachment by the general assembly is even more imminent than threatened earlier from office by means of the courts, it is said.

Will Go to Curtis Estate, Report.

During the long interest litigation it was often said that Gov. Small, if the time came that he was compelled to pay, would demand help from the estate of the late State Senator E. C. Curtis, his political and banking associate. Senator Curtis died on March 8, 1920, leaving an estate appraised at $1,000,000, and the Supreme court in effect said that additional assets would have to be found in the Curtis estate before any claim could be made on it.

A small payroll told a friend yesterday that the $1,000,000 collection is the guise of a fund to pay the governor's judgment was "the bunk."

MILWAUKEE KEEPER ROBBED.

Mr. Ross Malatesta was held up by a band of three hold-up men at 7401 St. Lawrence street yesterday and robbed of $12.

tentative agreement, which has been referred by telegram to Premier Mussolini for his approval.

Accept U. S. Basis.

The British accept the principle of the debt settlement on the same lines as the American settlement. This means the Italians must agree to pay the total sum in the same proportion to the British debt as the sum which they agreed to pay in America bears to the American debt, with the following differences:

The Italian payments to America are small during the first year, increasing later, while payments to Britain are to be larger the first year, decreasing later.

Needed for Budget.

This is a concession to Britain's urgent need for money to balance the budgets for the next few years. The total amount of the Italian debt to Britain remains to be agreed upon, but little difficulty is expected in this, if Sir. Mussolini accepts the principles outlined above. The Italians must also withdraw their demand for the physical repayment of £22,000,000 gold (about $110,000,000) deposited as security for early borrowings. This sum will now be treated simply as a set off against the total amount of the debt.

WOMEN MARCH ON WHITE HOUSE, TO LOSE FAVORS

Now Ask Protection from Their Friends.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—(Special)—Recollections of militant suffrage campaign were stirred today when 350 women with the familiar purple, white and gold banners of those fights, marched to the White House this afternoon to plead for President Coolidge's support for the "equal rights amendment" to the constitution.

Returning to a mass meeting of women from all over the country, the delegates reported that the petition had been left in the President's executive office and that the President had promised to receive the leaders of the equal rights movement tomorrow.

"Never until the equal rights amendment is written into the constitution," declared Miss Josephine Casey of Chicago, former organizer for the American Federation of Labor, "will working women be safe from their well-meaning but misguided friends who seek to 'protect' them by preventing them from engaging on equal terms with men in the work of the world, and deciding for themselves what they want to do, what they can do and when they shall do it."

Legislation passed in several states was designed to give protection for the working woman but has developed into actual persecution of the woman attempting to compete with men for jobs, the petition presented to the President complained. The petition says wages have been reduced, opportunity for advancement restricted and certain branches of industry closed to women because of 48 hour-a-week laws, overtime laws and laws prohibiting married women from working.

"To put restrictions upon women in business and in industry which do not apply to the men competing with them for the same employment, is to handicap women, no matter what the restrictions are," declared Miss Gail Laughlin.

"Suppose a man and a woman seek the same job," she continued. "The man says, 'I can work whatever hours the job requires.' The woman says, 'The law puts restrictions on me. If you employ me, you must watch the clock if you would avoid punishment at the hands of the law; you must be under the constant surveillance of inspectors.' Which would the employer have? The man every time of course."

THREE BOB MAN OF $24.
James Purley, 3636 West 21st street, was held up by three men at 39th and Indiana avenue, who robbed him of $24.

NEW PROTEST WRAPS SMALL ON COW T. B. TESTS

Lundin's Home County
Demands Action.

Gov. Small's failure to aid Illinois farmers in ridding their cattle herds of tuberculosis brought a new protest yesterday from the Lake county board of supervisors, which mailed a resolution to the governor citing his position as unlawful and urging him to immediately come to the farmers' assistance. At this further evidence of displeasure with the governor was added to that from many farmers, agricultural association officials and others began to review Mr. Small's record on pure milk with a view to taking him to court to force compliance with the law, which, they declare, holds the governor must grant the relief sought.

Whole Program Is Delayed.
In the resolution from Lake county, which is the home of Fred Lundin and a small political stronghold, it was stated that the entire tuberculosis eradication program in Illinois has been halted because Gov. Small has not acted on the remaining $1,750,000 of the $3,000,000 appropriated by the last legislature for paying the farmers for cattle slaughtered as diseased.

Until the state bar is lifted, no farmers can put their herds under the tuberculin test, the resolution stated, and unless the herds are tested none of their milk can be shipped to Chicago under the new pure milk ordinance effective April 1. Further, the Lake county board said, the farmers will further, and provided that if federal aid was withdrawn, for any reason whatever, the state must pay the federal share.

Last year the state senate appropriated $3,000,000 to indemnify the owners of slaughtered t. b. cattle. In the house, where Gov. Small's power lay, the sum was reduced to $2,000,000. The senate, reconsidering in a session replete with criticism of the Small administration, finally put through the $3,000,000 appropriation. The legislature set aside $3,500,000 for eradication work in the forty-eight states. Illinois' share was $270,000, and that sum has been spent. With its exhaustion Gov. Small not-ted Dr. John J. Lintner, federal veterinarian in charge of the work, that the state would pay no further indemnities until the government provided more funds. And the testing came to a complete halt.

The other day the appropriations committee in congress indicated that the government would spend only $3,000,000 for national eradication work, which would make Illinois' quota only $250,000.

When vigorous protests from the farmers against the governor's action reached him, Mr. Small gave another, entirely different reason. He then said that after the tax levy was made, appropriations from the general fund were increased from $55,000,000 to $70,000,000.

Now the governor said, just last Friday, the fund is so low that the state cannot pay the farmers. Later he said he thought the state would pay $500,000, but there has been no order to resume the work.

Looking for an answer to the governor's statement that there was no money for them in the general fund, the farmers assumed that it was depleted by the army of state payrolls paid from it.

The state milk commission, composed of representatives of the farmers, milk distributors and city and state health officials, will meet today in what is scheduled to be the final session. Mayor Dever and Gov. Small have been invited to attend.

LINK THEFT RING WITH SLAYING OF INFORMER; NAB 2

Police inquiry into the murder of Harry (Schoolmaster) Schneider, whose bullet riddled body was found early Saturday on the doorstep of his home at 244 South Robey street, took a new turn yesterday when two new suspects were identified as being his close associates in what authorities contend was a wholesale dealing in stolen property.

The two suspects, William (Gyp) Gold and Max Weiner, were taken into custody by Capt. Frank Matchett, of Marquette police, after the captain had listened to the story of Mrs. Elsie Zimmerman, niece of Schneider's widow and wife of Samuel Zimmerman, man, now awaiting sentence in the county jail following his conviction on a charge of receiving stolen property.

Zimmerman identifies them. Gold and Weiner were led separately before Zimmerman in the death chamber at the county jail. Without hesitation he identified them as having been present at a transaction concerning six stolen dresses he had with Schneider at a west side restaurant.

Weiner, a husky man of belligerent mien, merely scowled.

"First time I ever saw this fellow in my life," he told Assistant State's Attorney Emmett Byrne. "Neither did I ever see this Gold before, or know Schneider."

Gold, more shrinking than belligerent, also scowled but admitted he had slight acquaintance with Schneider and Zimmerman. Both prisoners denied ever having been engaged in Schneider's supposedly wholesale dealings in stolen property or of knowing anything about his murder.

Later Capt. Matchett said he might book them on burglary charges, but admitted that as yet he has no evidence connecting them directly with the killing.

Gold and Weiner were arrested on the theory, held by police, that Schneider was slain in the belief that he had turned police informer to aid Zimmerman.

Court Ruling Seen as Clue.

Judge Worth E. Caylor had intimated that if given the names of Zimmerman's accomplices he might consider mitigating the latter's sentence. Later the names of Gold and Weiner were furnished the judge by Mrs. Zimmerman.

Though leaning strongly to the Zimmerman angle as furnishing the solution of the murder, the authorities have not abandoned the belief that Schneider may have been killed because he turned informer in the investigation of the murder of "Big Steve" Wisniewski by the Valley gang two years ago.

In connection with this theory it is expected that Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake, beer barons, will be questioned. Two brothers, Dary and Morris Dunn, saloon keepers, are now in custody.

KILLS SELF AS WOMAN SPURNS HIS LOVE PLEAS

Three months ago Charles Johnson, 33 years old, a stonecutter living at the home of Mrs. Nora Chisholm, 4346 West Superior street, met Mrs. Julia Dalton, 3203 Jackson boulevard, 28 years old, divorced, brunette, and comely.

He became infatuated. At Christmas time they quarreled and he threatened to kill her.

Yesterday her telephone rang. It was Johnson. He said: "If you ever want to see me alive again you'd better come to me."

Mrs. Dalton went. When she was shown into his room he lay on the bed and she saw he had been drinking. She said to him: "You've been drinking again" and in a few minutes she walked out and left him.

A shot rang out as she opened the front door to leave the house. She and Mrs. Chisholm went in and found Johnson had shot himself in the right temple. They took him to St. Anne's hospital, but he was dead when they arrived there.

CROWD WATCHES $75,000 FIRE AT PRODUCE HOUSE

Damage estimated at $75,000 was caused by a spectacular fire last night at 212-214 West Randolph street, in the heart of the wholesale commission district. Thousands of persons were attracted to the scene by the flames, which gained rapid headway, and traffic on Randolph and Sangamon streets was tied up for more than two hours.

The two-story brick structure and the stock, owned by the Novak Grocery company and the People's Produce company, were almost totally destroyed. Telephone services in the neighborhood was interrupted.

Damage of several thousand dollars was caused by another blaze in a six-story building at 120 West Polk street. The National Underwriters, Kohl & Madden, and the Gentry Printing company, on the fourth, fifth and sixth floors, were the heaviest losers.

NO QUARTER FOR FOES, MUSSOLINI TELLS FASCISTI

BY JOHN CLAYTON.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

ROME, Jan. 17.—With the populist deputies, who make up the Aventine opposition and who were thrown out in a stormy session yesterday, missing the Italian parliament held a short session today. It was marked by an announcement by Premier Mussolini that he would only accept full surrender by his political foes.

Sig. Mussolini opened his address by expressing indignation over the fight which marked the close of parliament yesterday. He said the "opposition deputies stole into the session, hiding behind the memory of the great dead, who loved Fascism intensely and was loved by the Fascists, expecting unanimity of thanks in this moment of our great emotion." This referred to the memorial session in memory of the late queen mother, Margherita.

Wants No Incense Now.
Sig. Mussolini recalled that he had been named after a mythical god, "Mithras" by Italians. He said he renounced this title and refused all anticipatory glorification.

"I am most alive among all living persons, just as are other good Italians and Fascists," he said. "I do not want to be transplanted into another realm yet, nor have conventional incense burned for me."

The premier said the opposition deputies' return to the chamber would be tolerated on the acceptance of the following conditions:

1. They must recognize publicly that the Fascist revolution is an accomplished fact.
2. They must publish a statement that they solemnly recognize that their campaign has been a failure, as there has never existed any moral question regarding the government or the Fascist party.
3. They must publicly separate them-

RURAL HOTEL OWNER BEATS ROCKEFELLER MOVE TO CLOSE ROAD

Tarrytown, N. Y., Jan. 17.—(AP)—

Twenty-five years ago John D. Rockefeller closed a highway that ran past the late Michael Foley's hotel near Tarrytown, thereby, according to Foley and his family, substantially reducing the value of his hotel.

Foley's son, John J. Foley, a Tarrytown dairy man, at a meeting of the board of trustees last night prevented Mr. Rockefeller from closing the Longwood road, a seldom used and unimproved highway running through the Rockefeller property from North Tarrytown to Pocantico Hills.

Mr. Rockefeller has been trying for some time to have the road closed. To night he presented his petition, signed by five property owners, but Foley presented another petition bearing more than 100 names opposing Mr. Rockefeller's request, and the trustees refused to close the road.

seives from those continuing anti-Fascist propaganda abroad.

Will Not Compromise.
If these conditions are fulfilled the disbanded Aventine faction will be tolerated by the Fascists, he said.

"Without acceptance and fulfillment of these conditions so long as I remain—and I promise myself to remain—a long time—they neither today, nor ever, may reënter here."

The speech was frequently interrupted by cries of approval, and was followed by tremendous applause and the singing of the Fascist battle song. It is expected that the Aventine opposition which rolled from the chamber after the election of Deputy Matteotti, a millionaire socialist, will now split. The minority will accept the Fascists' conditions and the majority resign.

Parliament will meet Jan. 21 to ratify the Locarno treaties. The report of the parliamentary commission on foreign affairs, distributed at today's assembly, ends with these words: "It is strange that conquered Germany is given a colonial mandate, while the conqueror, Italy, has received none."

WORLD WHEAT CROP ESTIMATED AT 4 BILLION BU.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—(AP)—The world crop of wheat for the season 1925-26 was estimated by the department of agriculture today at approximately four billion bushels on the basis of returns received from practically all producing countries except China.

The latest estimates have indicated a production of 3,350,000,000 bushels outside of Russia, and the most recent reports from that country have placed its crop at 645,000,000 bushels.

The Argentine crop was estimated at 215,000,000 and the Australian at 110,000,000 bushels.

Floods and storms in Europe followed by severe cold are believed by department experts there to have caused considerable winter killing.

"The distribution of this year's crop," said the department's summary, "is such as to encourage greater consumption than last year in Europe. It is obvious that many Europeans consume more wheat when they have produced it than when they have to buy it."

How Do You Test YOUR Advertisements?

Advertisements, like salesmen, need to be inventoried and trial balanced every so often to see if they are as good as they look. A really good piece of copy, or a really good campaign, has nothing to lose by a test or a comparison or a showdown.

Copy tests serve to show just what interests the public, and enable the advertiser to concentrate on profit-making advertising. How to test advertisements and how to compare one advertisement with another are subjects we will enjoy discussing with any one interested.

We offer free a book "Four Square Advertising" which will be sent to any prospective advertiser. It outlines an excellent standard by which advertising agency service may be judged.

WHAT Big Business is doing in NORFOLK

HALF way down the Atlantic Coast a great industrial city is stepping to the forefront as a center of world commerce.

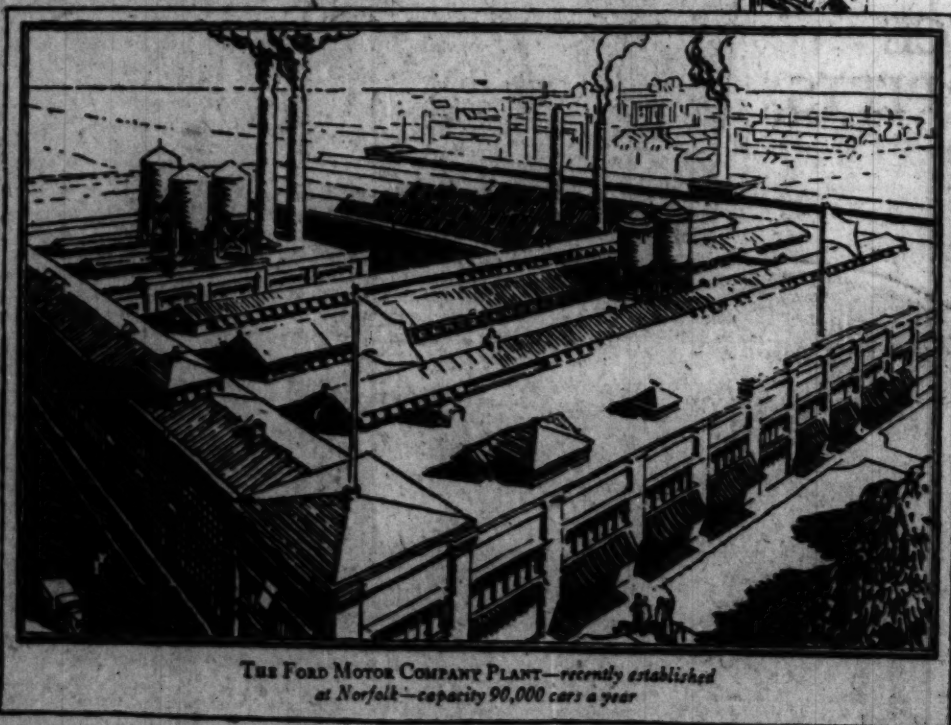

The Ford Motor Company and the International Portland Cement Company are just two of many great plants recently established at Norfolk. These companies—and others like them, have found the Norfolk-Portsmouth area of Virginia an industrial location that offers rare opportunities.

Power—fuel—water are abundant at Norfolk and at lowest cost. Labor is high class and contented. Less than 5% of the population is of foreign birth.

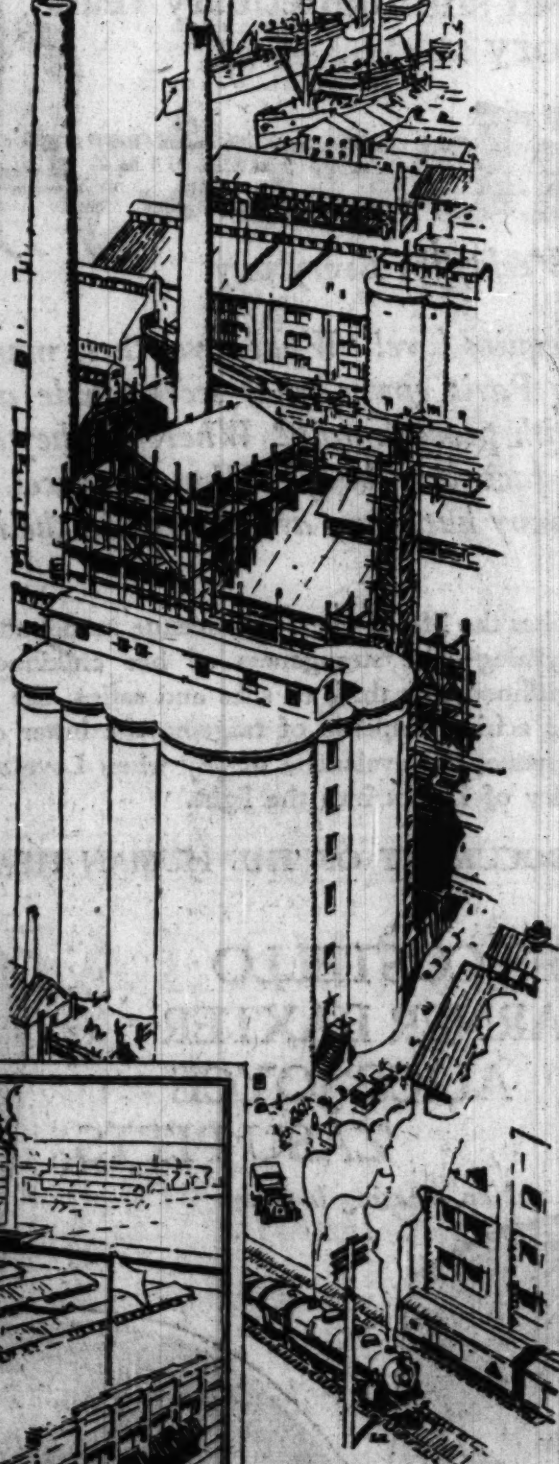

Because of a highly favored geographic location Norfolk freight rates are low—both for raw materials—and in the shipment of finished products. Eight railway systems reach out to all parts of the country.

By sea frequent sailings to and from all parts of the world bring in raw materials—cut down the cost of distribution for finished products.

Norfolk's abundant acreage provides unexcelled plant sites at moderate cost. A million dollar revolving fund is available to responsible organizations for assistance in the financing of industrial sites and buildings. ## A COMMENT that could not be bought with money

On November 28th one of the nation's largest weekly magazines, in its editorial columns, commented favorably on "PLANNED SUCCESS."

Editorials in this magazine cannot be bought with money. MERIT is the only medium of exchange for such recognition.

This institution is gratified in having presented to its public a plan that, evidently, is attracting national attention—one that deserves your consideration.

If every person with an income—and bills to pay—would adopt this plan and follow the simple rules laid down, less difficulty would be experienced in paying bills when due and leaving a surplus.

And many more wholesome pleasures would be indulged in by those who seem never able to lift their noses from the grindstone of indebtedness.

We present "PLANNED SUCCESS" as a sound basis on which to "Organize Personal Finance" in a way that will guarantee money-success if followed.

It is for the Man or Woman in Any Walk of Life Who Is Interested in a New Answer to an Old Problem—that of proper apportionment and conservation of income.

A copy of our book "PLANNED SUCCESS" may be had upon request. You may do well to deal with THIS BANK and adopt THIS PLAN.

How to make TEA correctly

Firstly

Be sure you use India Tea, or a blend containing India Tea.

Secondly

Use an earthenware teapot, and put into it one good teaspoonful of India Tea for each cup of tea required.

Thirdly

Be sure you pour the water into the teapot the moment it boils. Only fresh boiling water can bring out the true flavour of the tea. Hot water is noise. Water that has been boiling for some time does not give the best results. This is important if you want a really good cup of tea.

Fourthly

Allow the tea to stand 5 minutes to infuse. Put a little cream or milk into each cup before pouring out the tea. It greatly improves the flavour. Then add sugar to taste.

Any retailer or store can supply you with India Tea or blends containing India Tea. He has no difficulty in getting it, as practically every wholesale distributor of tea in this district supplies India Tea. He will gladly get it for you—but—

Be sure you use INDIA TEA or a blend containing India Tea

Mae Tinee Gives C of Motion

By E. PHILLIPS

Mr. Harvey Wendover, the motion picture producer, is a man who is in need of a good deal of rest. He has been working for some time on a new motion picture, and he is now in the hospital, recovering from a recent operation.

Very soon Violet and her room, at one of the tables in the hotel, were returned to Violet's check.

"I hadn't had time yet to get my things," she said. "I couldn't help it," she said. She looked at her close friend, Violet, who was sitting next to her.

"I had an accident," he said, but my local doctor told me to see Horridge. We as though the next six months that night, and I put to them that after twelve months you spend the time? They all which resulted in my offer to "Pull Down" when I look "Yes. He didn't for a moment or even interesting myself in suggest was that if I could not for food, but for a little bit "So that was why," she said. "That was why," he told her. She played with her coffee uneasily. Finally she said, "But you are better now. You are going to be ill."

"One never knows," he said. "I have found out one thing. Pleasure after pleasure, and one's taste and one reaches a point where one is no longer interested. Personally we do not know what is true. What do you mean?" she asked. "He did a thing which was not his own," she said. "Violet, dear," he said, "I was a child—but I am not. I am between us as nothing a child, something to be taken into the real world of like other women. It was a strange time of the morning was but a score which an attentive man were a little sleepy-eyed. Violet, dear," he said, "I was a child—but I am not. Her mooncycloable thrilled with passionate expectancy. Her lips were parted. Her eyes implored him. Still he was silent. Then with a little wave of the hand he pointed downward. A band of mist had fallen around them like a ribbon, through which the tops of the cypress trees showed faintly. Below, it hung close to the ground, on the vineyards and amongst olive trees, but curiously enough down in Monte Carlo the sun was shining and little opaque shafts of light lay here and there on the nearer stretches of the coast.

"We have come to the mountains," he said, "in search of truth. I will succubate. If this weakness passes—then we will finish our conversation."

He pouted a little. He had hinted at his secret so lightly that his words carried little weight.

Russian Officers' Ball on Saturday Is Big Event of Week

BY NANCY R.

Well, every one in town is looking forward to the Russian officers' ball that is due Saturday night. With the kind of passages—those restless folks who must fly when it's cold to a warmer spot, and vice versa—winging their way to other fields, one large, brilliant affair a week is almost all that's attempted.

As a matter of fact, this means innumerable dinners beforehand, hostesses have already been busy signing on their friends—the Kellogg Fairbanks are to give one of the gayest of them.

Switching from Russian doings to oriental, the third of a series of six Tuesday morning lectures on oriental art will be given tomorrow in gallery No. 4 at the Art Institute at half past eleven. Charles Fabens Kelley is the lecturer, his subject to be Chinese sculpture. These talks are given up for the joint auspices of that interesting band of Chicagoites, the Orientals, and the museum instruction department of the institute, the proceeds to be used to help build up the oriental collection at the Art Institute. Russell Tyson is chairman; Potter Palmer is vice chairman, and Mrs. Samuel A. Burr, Mrs. Walter B. Rogers, and Mrs. William B. Hale make up the executive committee.

While on the subject of art, I am reminded of the delightful exhibit that opens this afternoon in the O'Brien gallery, on North Michigan avenue—a collection of the pencil drawings and designs of Elizabeth Telling. Many of the future leaders of Chicago society will be represented, for Miss Telling has done among many children here little Eddies and Bowsen Eddies (two of the William McCormick Blaine youngsters); Johnny Runnels; Barbara McLaughlin (the Freddie McLaughlin's prized daughter); young Gerald King; James and Peggy Boughaling, and Frances Bell, the daughter of the Laird Bells.

Day's News in Society

A smart crowd attended Arthur Upson's second lecture on oriental art, entitled "Sources, Meaning and Value of Early Oriental Carpet Design," at the Arts club yesterday afternoon, afterwards testing in the spacious lounge. Gilbert, Mrs. Hanna Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel P. S. Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Deering, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wesley Thompson, Mr. Robert Martin, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Meloy, Mrs. Kester Ford, and Mrs. Augusta J. White were among those present.

The Charleston, that irresistible and most fascinating of intricate dance steps, has penetrated to the strong hold of Chicago society, for the Women's Athletic club most recently and conservatively of organizations, has announced a series of five Monday evening lessons at 11 o'clock, beginning this morning.

Casard, of 1100 Lake Shore drive, have so many friends in Chicago that every luncheon and dinner during the week they are to be here has been reserved for parties for them. Mrs. Lawrence Viles gave a dinner at the Saddle and Cycle club on Saturday evening, and Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman a luncheon yesterday afternoon. Mrs. F. W. Smith, Mrs. John T. Pifer, and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed are others who are to be hostesses for the guests. The Casards were accompanied by Mrs. Casard's brother, Andre Mercier, who is the Schwab's guests at the Racquet club during his sojourn.

Mrs. Thornhill Bovey of 2340 Lincoln Park West, and her father, John Allen Spoor of 1526 State parkway, are to depart today for what has come to be known as their "annual outing," a stay of two or three weeks at Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Gardner of 23 Riverside place have departed for a week's stay in New York City.

Tribune Cook Book

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Seasoning Sausages.
Mrs. A. F. Rice has kindly written me as follows: "I was interested in your article on sausage making, but I would like to offer a suggestion which will make the work easier. After you have cut the meat into little pieces ready to grind, add the seasonings and work through well before grinding. It will be much easier to season it and the seasonings will be better blended with the meat. I lived on a farm for forty years and often made forty or fifty pounds at once, so I think I know just how. Your seasoning seems right."

Of course we are most grateful for a testimony like this, and I am sure it is true and excellent advice to put the seasoning in this way. I have but a dim recollection of the sausage making I saw done when I was a child, but now I feel convinced the seasoning was added before the grinding or chopping of the meat.

Since our seasonings were "right," perhaps we would better repeat the recipe in order to show what they were. For plain sausage of farm type use one-third or even up to one-half as much fat as lean pork. Grind both

Bolero Frock of Lace Has Fine Social Position

by Corinne Lowe

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The bolero takes no more rest than one's janitor just before Christmas. In today's sketch you see it sitting up late at night, for here it forms part of an evening frock which is recommended by a number of striking new features.

This creation is made of ecru lace, combined deftly with gold cloth. The latter forms the rather narrow undershirt, and is also used as a band for a tunic flaring quite broadly at front and sides. A wide sash is also of the metallic tissue, and the upper part of the corsage is entirely developed in it.

Note the points in which lace is applied to the background and how skillfully they corroborate the upward movement of the bolero! These points, by the way, are outlined by the same blue taffeta pipings that band the bolero. The tone of blue employed is steel, and this tint gives character to the blending notes of ecru and gold. This same frock is not limited in its fabric policies. Other types of lace may be substituted or a figured chiffon may combine with a plain chiffon.

ANDERS HAUGEN SOARS TO WIN IN NORGE SKI MEET

Duluth Rider Tops Class B.

(Picture on back page.)
A skier who won't be beaten can't be beaten, and yesterday in the twenty-first annual meet of the Norge Ski Club at Fox River grove he wasn't. Anders Haugen, of Grand Beach, Mich., United States Olympic point winner, carried away top honors in an event which was one of the country's greatest.

Treading the air for 145 feet in his first effort, Haugen made the longest counting jump of the day. Frank Jervine, representing the Detroit Ski club, leaped 111 feet, but fell near the base of the hill.

Herbert Elfrstrand of Duluth, Minn., showing almost perfect form, was awarded first place in class B, although Hans Walstedt of Minneapolis, competing for the first time on the Norge slide, had an edge in distance. Elfrstrand's best jump was 135 feet, while Walstedt cleared 141. Under the international ski rules, which govern the meet, form and distance count equally.

Crowd of 15,000 Watches.
More than 15,000 fans crowded the foot of the highest hill in the Fox River valley to see famous skiers from all parts of the middle west to their feet. Most of the fans motored to the grounds, although eight special trains carried 4,500 from Chicago. The turnout was considerably smaller than in 1920, when Norge club officials said attendance was close to 25,000. A heavy fog that didn't lift until shortly before noon kept away many who thought the event probably would be postponed.

Haugen's victory in class A was no surprise. He has been competing in the Norge annual since 1908 and always has finished well to the front. His margin of superiority yesterday over Halvor Bjornsgaard of Red Wing, Minn., was only a fraction of a point. The edges credit Haugen with 17.8 points, while Bjornsgaard was given 17.4.

Woman Leaps 100 Feet.
The five mile cross-country race for women was called off because of lack of snow and a slide from the top of the hill was substituted. Form also counted for points. Miss Lorraine Maden of the Norge club won with 14.3 points and Miss Sigrid Gronstad of the Forest Preserve Ski club followed with 14.1. Mrs. Elda Holter, 31 years old, went down the slide from half way up the slide for a leap of 100 feet. She is the only woman skier who ever has gone over the Norge slide.

The Chicago medal for scoring the greatest number of points, open to both classes, was awarded to Anders Haugen. Halvor Bjornsgaard won the medal for graceful jumps. Hans Walstedt annexed the prize for the longest standing jump in class B.

Failure of the skiers to endanger the meet record was attributed to the lack of snow, which gave a very slight but less distance. The slide, which towers 115 feet into the air from the starting platform, where the skiers start down the chute down a 25 degree, was in good condition despite the mild weather. From the base to the top of the hill is 210 feet and the hill slope is at an angle of 45 degrees.

Two Out in Spills.
No serious accidents marred the meet. Thomas Hagen of Eau Claire, Wis., in his practice trial did a lot of things from the time he left the start until he landed on the hill, but a slight cut on the lip was all he had to show for his antics. He withdrew from the competition, as did Leonard Peterson of Duluth, who also cut his lip in his first trip down the slide.

Swiss Peter Hoffman personally directed traffic from Chicago to the country. Norge club members dined contentedly in the meet last night at the Norge club, 250 North Kedzie boulevard, where President Fred Bruen of the Norge organization presented prizes winners with their awards. Summary:

GRANGE STARS IN RUN TO SHOWERS; BEARS WIN, 14-0

Red Eases Through for 53 Yards in Game.

Red Strikes Gold

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 17.—(AP)—The football game here yesterday between the Chicago Bears and the Los Angeles Tigers ended Red Grange the largest purse he has received since he became a professional.

P. S. Halbert, promoter of the game, said tonight that the total receipts would amount to nearly $135,000, and between $45,000 and $50,000 would go to Grange. Attendance was estimated at between 75,000 and 76,000.

BY GEORGE SHAFER. [Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 17.—(Special.)—A fight was all that was lacking to make a perfect funeral of the Red Grange football game at the high school stadium here today, when the Chicago Bears, headed by football's leading man, put on a show at so much per minute, defeating the California All-Stars in the performance of a 14 to 0 score in four much shortened quarters.

Red Grange made a touchdown late in the last quarter, but outside of this his notable effort was the run he made from the field to the dressing room. Walquist running interference for him, promoter George Cline had about 10,000 fans present.

Red Takes Things Easy.

Grange was rather listless in his play during much of the thirty minutes that he performed, seldom hitting his tacklers but rather easing against them except at the time he had to rush for a score. Results of Saturday's battles indicated strength in unexpected quarters.

The Illinois showing against Minnesota and the triumph it took from Ohio state Saturday night doesn't indicate that the Illini will get far against the Wolverines in tonight's battle at Ann Arbor. The demonstrators, while pretty well supplied with experienced players, haven't shown a spirited offense, and have been guilty of glaring weakness defensively.

Purple vs. Indiana.

Northwestern has come within a few points of winning from Michigan and Purdue, losing to the latter Saturday night, showing a strong offense with some accurate shooting, despite erratic passing. The Hoosiers, who meet the Purple tonight, also boast a fast offense, which, though falling short against Wisconsin and Iowa, yet test the Purple.

Chicago employed the same defense against Iowa, a variation of the five man style, and showed unusual improvement. It is likely that the Maroons will hold Purdue down to a small margin of victory with that defense.

The Purdue-Indiana battle Saturday night will be an interesting affair and unless Northwestern shows the Hoosiers to be overrated tonight, will have considerable bearing on the final outcome of the titular race. Iowa, having found its stride in beating Indiana, will have a hard time at Ohio State. It is conceivable that Northwestern will take the Badgers into camp at Madison, for it is to be expected that Dr. Maxwell's unit will not find its long shooting game so effective on a foreign field.

Here's a New Low Scheme to Get Jeweled Fight Belts

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
New York, Jan. 17.—(Special.)—Some low character has been trying to make a sucker of Lord Londsdale, the English nobleman who has a peculiar habit of giving jeweled belts to English prizefighters. And, while it is not the business of these dispatches to blow the whistle whenever a noble English lord is about to be made a sucker, it will not come under the head of squealing to explain what a low character thinks Lord Londsdale is.

There is a piece in the papers from London stating that some one has asked Lord Londsdale to buy a new issue of jewelry for international competition and stating, furthermore, that his lordship looks with favor on the idea.

Where Are Belts Now?
Of course, Lord Londsdale is at liberty to give jeweled stomachers to the world champion oyster opener, the world champion short order cook, and the world champion squash tennis player if his peculiar peculiarity should take that form. But in looking with favor on the idea of presenting a dry quart of diamonds to the world champion, the architect of an 18 karat gold belt to American prize fighters, he should first advise himself as to what happens to championship belts that are won by American prize fighters.

In England the fighter who wins one of Lord Londsdale's pants garters agrees to defend it three times and he is under great moral compulsion to turn it over to his conqueror if he should be coked on the crumple, which is the English way of saying socked on the bleat.

Richard Buys Big Supply.
Some years ago Tex Rickard, having quite a satchel of excess profits and a friend in the pop bottle business, contracted for a crate of diamond studded belts, one for each of the eight regular classes and a few odd ones for the synthetic championships, such as the Junior lightweight and colored middleweight.

Rickard soon gave away his crate of belts and a few months later Joe Lynch, who had won the bantamweight belt, was asked to turn it over to Johnny Buff as his successor.

Buff Meets Rebuff.
Later, Lynch fought another fight for Rickard's firm and Rickard reimbursed himself to the extent of several hundred dollars by deducting the sum from Lynch's purse, but Johnny Buff never got the belt nor any other belt.

And, showing the vast sentimental price that Joe Lynch placed on the belt, he later broke it up to use the jewels for stickpins.

Nobody seems to know what happened to the rest of the crate of 32,500 belts. Perhaps a canvass of the pawn shops would throw some information in the way of anyone who cares to inquire.

And that's the kind of sucker some low character is trying to make of Lord Londsdale, the noble English earl.

3,000 ENTRIES SET MARK FOR SILVER SKATES

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Close to 3,000 individual entries, a new record for the event, have been received for the Tauxine's tenth annual silver skates Derby to be held in Garfield park Saturday and Sunday.

Because of this unsurpassed entry, trials in the juvenile and junior races will be held Saturday afternoon.

Last year 2,558 individual nominations were sent in for the races. This was the high water mark, but the interest shown by the skaters this season has resulted in the creation of a new entry record, a feature indicating the importance of these races and how they are regarded by the skating world.

Entries from Canada.
Not only will local skaters compete for the handsome individual prizes and team trophy, but experts will be here from Canada. St. Paul, Minneapolis, La Crosse, Wis., Aurora and many towns in upper Michigan.

According to competent judges of amateur athletics such as Julian T. Fitzgerald, Allan Blanchard and Martin A. Delaney, this year's entry season has resulted in the creation of a new entry record, a feature indicating the importance of these races and how they are regarded by the skating world.

Entry Classification Starts.
The entry is being rechecked and skaters being placed in their proper classes. As soon as this is done, the official number of entries will be announced together with the number which has entered for each race. The program will be given to the printer today so that programs will be available in time for charge on both days of the races.

As stated previously, the only requirement of the skaters is to be members of the Western Skating association. The silver skates which will go to the winners of the various races, together with the nickel plated and bronze runners which go to victors of second and third places, respectively, are now on display on the Madison street side of the old Tribune building, Madison and Dearborn streets.

Chicago Duo Bowl 1,351 and Set Record.
Aurora, Ill., Jan. 17.—(Special.)—Two Chicagoans, bowling in the double event of the twelfth annual Interstate tournament here today, broke the tournament record and established what is believed to be a new world's record for the two man event. F. W. Wright and A. Lutz rolled a total count of 1,351, the former knocking over 757 pines and the latter 594. Wright had games of 224, 243, and 280, while Lutz rolled 153 in his first game, 243, and 290.

Middle West Accepts U. S. Road Numbers

BY J. L. JENKINS.
State highway officials of the Mississippi valley, including Illinois, have decided to accept the long discussed plan for the numbering of through "United States roads," and rely upon the judgment of the American Association of State Highway Officials in the final routing and marking of the new national routes.

This decision was reached in resolutions following the close of the eighteenth annual meeting of the Mississippi Valley conference, held in the Sherman hotel and attended by officials and road interests in various parts of the country were not entirely satisfied with the present selections and the numbers assigned to the new federal routes. All matters pertaining to the national roads are now in the hands of the American association, which will make the final selection of the new general system of highway departments of the states included in the Chicago conference will take immediate steps to mark the United States routes that have been designated within their borders, according to the resolutions.

Some of the emphatic opposition to the new numbering system was voiced during the recent highway congress in Chicago, when from road men who want the old national trail names retained, rather than numbers assigned to the through routes. They protested that by numbering a road from coast to coast the country will lose much of the romance and tradition attached to historic trails and that much of the joy will be removed from the travel of the transcontinental motorist. Numerous trail associations, too, are opposing the numbering plan because the government designation of routes does not always follow the old established trails over their entire distance.

Like Adventure? Bob Has Job for You in Tropics
BY BOB BECKER.
In the Florida Keys, Fla., Jan. 17.—"The farther you go the bigger they grow." This is the refrain of a popular ditty sung by the key fishermen down here and when they warble these words they are telling the truth. Follow the gulf stream, reefs and islands westward to Key West and beyond, and it seems as if the farther you travel into the warm, tropical Atlantic the larger the fish grow. The size that some of the game fish attain has not been ascertained as here are unexplored waters as far as the fishing is concerned.

Some day there will be a number of active fishing clubs down here where the key charting the fishing grounds and battling the big game fish that haunt the gulf stream, but to date little is known of the swordfish, the giant sailfin, tuna, and tarpon which cruise in these waters untroubled by artificial lures.

On the Pacific coast years of careful observation of the migrations and food habits of the game fish have assembled a valuable amount of information on a number of species. Nothing of this kind has been done in the waters around the keys. The perseverance and enthusiasm of an adventurous group of fishermen who will solve some of the secrets of the gulf stream. Giant sailfin larger than any one has caught north of here and undoubtedly equal in size to those whoopers of the South Pacific have been seen here, but no one has caught a specimen.

There are tuna in these waters that challenge any angler's prowess. A few have been hooked. They demand the angler's patience, the size that they attain—these seem still have a question mark over them. Yes, it is without doubt here is one of the most wonderful fishing places in North America, but it's an "aquatic wilderness."

Hadjick and Parelli Ready for Mat Bout
Joe Parelli, former world's middleweight champion, and Tony Hadjick, one of the leaders in the 135 pound division, will meet in the windup of this wrestling show of the 2024 coast artillery in the Broadway armory to night. It will be a finish match, best two in three falls, and the principals will take holds at 10 o'clock.

Each is anxious to obtain another match with Johnny Meyers, the middleweight champion. Although Johnny has defeated both Parelli and Hadjick still believe they can dethrone the champion. With a possible match with Meyers as a reward for the victor, tonight's bout should bristle with action and application of numerous holds.

Lon Tauber, who took the title away from Parelli only to lose it to Meyers, will clash with Eddie Pope, claimant of the southern middleweight title, in the semi-windup. Midget Fisher of Wisconsin will be one of the principals in the opening preliminary, while one other bout completes the card, which will open at 8:15 o'clock.

Reno Gaudin and William Demaree have accepted the offer of $5,000 made by Art Koller of the Star and Garter to engage in a finish wrestling match at the Star and Garter Friday night.

Paddy Harmon expects to close the finish match between Demaree and Stanley Kladak today for his Dreamland arena Jan. 20.

BACKACHE GIVEN QUICK RELIEF

Tried simple home treatment and pain stops
"I had such a backache I didn't know what to do," writes a New York woman. "I looked through my medicine cabinet to see if I could find something to help me—and there was a bottle of Sloan's Liniment. I used it, and in half an hour I was better. The next day I went to a big engagement party. Now, when anyone has a pain, I say 'use Sloan's.'"

WHEAT MARKET

LARGER BUT NOT

BY CHARLES MICHAEL

The wheat market has been in a stage at which the increase in the part of speculators, cash interests generally, and the world over to sustain the level of values and advance any extent.

In other words, millers and bakers in all countries need wheat, and the United States cash wheat is the highest of the season, and for No. 2 hard winter in over for No. 2 northern, still an advance of 40 to 50 cents in Manitoba, at Buffalo, and in the Northwest despite the duty of 40 cents.

The United States has been well than in recent years as an import basis, but has a surplus, as have Argentina and Australia, of estimates of 200,000,000 bushels.

The new wheat is just coming in for export in those countries, and the question is, will it meet the views of buyers? If they do, they will pay, and the United States will be able to maintain them on a stable basis.

May wheat in Chicago was at the same level as the same delivery at one time last week. A dealer bought 500,000 bushels for the market and sold the same.

Liverpool Price News

Looking at the situation in the wheat market in the United States is too high. From the Canadian holder as well as the southern hemisphere, it is to be seen to who should do the buying or the selling.

Most of the large profits in the wheat market have been made in the recent advance of 25c in the price of wheat, and many of the buyers have covered up the profit. There is a large loss, however, although it is not so, positively where it is in the buyers have covered up the profit.

The short interest has been in the wheat market, and should anything of a covering movement, an increase in price will be a result.

For the immediate future, the wheat market is looking for a rise in price, and it is expected that the market will turn and rise sharply.

Privilege Trade News

Trading in grain privileges resumed on the Chicago Board of Trade as the United States Supreme Court declared the trade to be a national, it failing to produce the results of the trade, and this affords protection to the both sides of the market. The trade is a proposition, and an stabilizing influence on values, and so far has curtailed the speculation in the market, and gives millers and bakers an opportunity to trade on a basis of difference.

A close adjustment of the wheat market, and in some cases, it is believed that all the bullishness in the wheat market is represented in present price level, and the disposition is to be on all bulges.

An improvement has developed in the wheat market, and on four trade, but buyers are not only taking supplies of wheat, but their stocks that are in the market, and there is an improvement in the mills.

Large Decline in the Prices are off 13c from the point, and the close of the week, nearly the lowest, with new wheat, a loss of 10c to 15c. May closed at $1.71 1/4, and June at $1.50 1/4 @ 1.50 1/2, and July at $1.43 1/4 @ 1.43 1/2.
